

KING GEORGE KILLED ON 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS REIGN, TODAY

Ruler of Hellenes Kingdom Struck Down-- In Command of His Troops When Assassin Wrought Vengeance

Saloniki, March 18.—King George of Greece, who had taken personal command of his troops during the earlier period of the war, had been here since December when the Turkish fortress was occupied by the Greeks after a short siege.

The queen of Greece also has been here and has paid great attention to the care of the sick and wounded.

King George in December had a meeting here with King Ferdinand of Bulgaria to discuss the disposition of the captured Turkish territory after the war.

King George was in his 68th year and had ruled 50 years. He was a brother of Queen Mother Alexandra of England and a son of the late king of Denmark.

He was chosen king of the Hellenes in 1863, in succession to Otto I. A previous attempt to assassinate him was made in 1898 but was frustrated.

GOVERNMENT TROOPS TO PROTECT BORDER

General Tracy Aubert Sends Detachment With Artillery to Protect Laredo—Carranza Rebels Gone.

Monterey, Mex., March 18.—General Tracy Aubert today sent a detachment of 200 government troops with artillery to assist in protection of Laredo and the United States frontier against the attack of the Carranza rebels. Another column of government troops has been sent from here to capture a force of 80 rebels who have taken possession of the town of San Nicolas Hidalgo about five miles distant from this city.

Carranzistas Disappear. Laredo, Tex., March 18.—All trace of the Carranzistas who yesterday dashed into Nuevo Laredo with a woman leader, had disappeared today. They had left the camp south of the city where yesterday they appeared to be preparing to renew their attacks. The name of the woman who perished leading the charge has not yet been learned. The federal defenders of Nuevo Laredo announced today that 500 reinforcements were forty miles south of the city repairing the railroads and they should reach Nuevo Laredo tomorrow.

Lack of Confidence Shown. Washington, March 18.—General lack of confidence in commercial circles in Mexico are reflected in state department advices from concerning reports of fight between federal and rebels yesterday. There is no real service of telegraph communication between Nuevo Laredo and points to the interior of Mexico.

DELAWARE REFUSES TO RATIFY AMENDMENT

Dover, Del., March 18.—With only four more states needed, Delaware today refused the constitutional amendment providing for direct election of United States senators.

CHANGE IN ADMINISTRATION BRINGS BRYAN, JR., AND WIFE INTO PROMINENCE

Among the persons brought into prominence by the change in national administration are Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, Jr., son and daughter-in-law of the new secretary of state. They, with their two children, Mary S. and Helen V., are now living in Washington. The young husband is pursuing law studies in Georgetown University. His wife is a daughter of Alexander Berger, a Milwaukee millionaire.

THE DUCHESS OF ARGYLL SIXTY-FIVE YEARS OLD

London, March 18.—The bells of St. George's Chapel at Windsor pealed merrily today in celebration of the sixty-fifth birthday anniversary of the Duchess of Argyll, sister of the late King Edward and aunt of the present sovereign. The anniversary also was marked by the customary salute fired in the Longwalk. The Duchess of Argyll, Princess Louise, as she is now familiarly known, was born in Buckingham Palace, March 18, 1848. In 1871 she was married to the Marquis of Lorne, who later succeeded to his father's title of Duke of Argyll.

TEXAS BATTLESHIP DAY OBSERVED IN SCHOOLS

Austin, Texas, March 18.—In response to the request of Governor Colquhoun this was observed as "Texas Battleship Day" in all the public schools throughout the state. Exercises were held to express the public appreciation of the action of the greatest battleships of the Navy after the state of Texas. At the same time small contributions were received from the school pupils to aid in the purchase of a silver service for the new dreadnought.

CLEVELAND MEMORIAL IS DEDICATED TODAY

Birthplace of Former President at Caldwell, N. J., Purchased by Friends for Permanent Memorial.

Caldwell, N. J., March 18.—The little wooden house where Grover Cleveland was born, attracted a distinguished company today for its dedication as a permanent memorial to the dead president. The formal program of the day began with the transfer of a purse of $17,610 in payment for the house purchased by the Grover Cleveland Birthplace Memorial Association from trustees of the First Presbyterian church.

Richard F. Cleveland, the president's son, was selected to receive the key and open the front door while his sister, Esther, was chosen as the first of the official visitors to enter the room where her father saw the light just 74 years ago and decorate it with flowers. Her mother, now Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, was among the spectators.

The Cleveland memorial is the Presbyterian manse which the president's family occupied when his father was pastor of the Caldwell Presbyterian church. For its purchase the memorial association raised $25,000, of which $5,000 was contributed by residents of this town and the rest by a number of wealthy men, many of whom came here today for the dedication.

A movement is on foot to raise $25,000 more by popular subscription to provide for its care. Until this money is obtained and a caretaker installed the manse will continue to be occupied by the present pastor of the church.

The memorial is a two story frame structure set back from the road behind two big elms. The association intends to paint it white with green trimmings and otherwise restore it to the condition in which it was when occupied by the Cleverlands. On the adjoining lot a memorial library will be erected. Andrew Carnegie has promised $7,500 for this building.

CHICAGO SWITCHMEN THREATEN A STRIKE

Yard Employees on Nineteen Roads Leading into Chicago Make Demand for Shorter Hours.

Chicago, March 18.—It became known today that switchmen and yard tenders of 19 railroads entering Chicago have voted authorization to their leaders to call a strike if their demands are not met though the formal result of the mail vote will not be announced until late this afternoon after the official count has been made.

The men numbering about 5,000 ask for shorter hours and time and a half for overtime. This employers do not expect the strike despite the vote as probably mediation under the Erdman act will be sought. Such an appeal it is said, would clear up a question whether the Erdman act was not wiped out by the law which created the department of labor.

BLACKMAILERS WRECK HOME AND CAUSE EXCITEMENT

Chicago, March 18.—A bomb believed to have been placed by Italian blackmailers partly wrecked the home of Pedro Silverstri here early today. Silverstri, his wife and four children were thrown from their beds but other members of the family escaped unhurt.

Scots of excited residents in the district were aroused by the explosion and hastened to the scene, many of them in their night garments.

TILLMAN CURBS IRE FOR SAKE OF PARTY

WILL FOREGO ANY TROUBLE OVER COMMITTEE CHAIRMANSHIP TO INSURE HARMONY.

SUSPICION OF A DEAL

Gives Out a Statement Today in Regard to Senator Martin's Position in Case—Other Washington News.

Washington, March 18.—Senator Tillman's unusual speech in the democratic caucus last Friday when he failed of acceptance as chairman of the appropriations committee became public today when it was printed in full under authority of the senate. References to Senator Martin's activity leading up to his selection for the appropriation committee's chairmanship have aroused general discussion in congressional circles.

Senator Tillman declared he was unable to understand why Mr. Martin should have withdrawn from the contest for party leaders and should then have been given the most important chairmanship in the senate.

"I would hate to believe there had been any understanding or any promises or pledges made," he said. "As I have not proof I must leave any suspicions unsaid, but I cannot help the suspicion that there must have been a deal of some kind or Senator Martin would not have retired without a show-down."

Senator Tillman said if he had given up his plans to deliver a vitriolic speech it was because he wanted to promote party harmony.

"Democratic harmony and concert of action are more necessary at this time than anything I know of," he said.

"Democratic discipline also is needed very much for as compared with the republican we are an untrained mob."

Favors Budget System. President Wilson is in favor of a budget system for the conduct of the government's finances. He made public today a letter written January 30th from Trenton, N. J., to Senator Tillman, expressing the hope that a budget system might be worked out after he got to Washington. President Wilson wrote in part:

"Ever since I was a youngster I have been deeply interested in our method of financial legislation. One of the subjects I shall have most in mind when I get to Washington will be conferences with my legislative colleagues there with a view to bringing some budget system into existence. This business of building up the expense of the nation piece by piece, certainly will lead us to error and perhaps embarrassment."

Railroad Valuation. Chairman Clark of the interstate commerce commission today in a statement outlining the commission's preliminary plans for physical valuation of railroads, authorized by the last congress, declared to estimate could be made of the time required to complete the work.

"The commission, however," said Mr. Clark, "is not, as has been suggested, staggered or dazed by the duty which has been placed upon it. The work will be approached and proceeded with in an impartial and thorough way."

Cabinet Meeting. President Wilson and the cabinet worked two hours today over a statement defining the attitude of the United States toward the Chinese so-called six power loan. It was announced the statement would not be given out before late today or probably tomorrow.

FAVORS DISPOSAL OF CROPS OF FARMS BY STATE COMMISSION

GOVERNOR MCGOVERN SENDS MESSAGE TO LEGISLATURE ON THIS SUBJECT.

DEMAND IS STATEWIDE

Assistance is Requested to Protect the Consumer and Grower from the Middleman.

Madison, Wis., March 18.—In a message sent to the Wisconsin legislature Monday night Gov. McGovern recommends the passage of a bill creating a state market commission to enable farmers to sell their products to better advantage and at the same time lower the cost to the consumer. Accompanying the message was a bill drafted by the governor which he desires enacted into law.

The measure was submitted to the legislature because of the insistent demand from the rural communities of the state for assistance in organizing and establishing co-operative enterprises to protect the farmer against unfair business practices and methods of competition. The bill also seeks to improve conditions surrounding home life in the country and reduce the constantly increasing influx of persons from the rural communities to the cities.

The proposed law creates a state market commission composed of the dairy and food commissioners as ex-officio members and two other members to be appointed by the governor. At the opening of this session I called attention to the present widespread tendency toward a decline in rural population coincident with a rapid rise in the cost of living. The former of these unwelcome changes has been looked upon by some as the main cause of the latter. Others consider both rather as effects of a fundamental common cause. All concede that an intimate relation exists between the two.

As to the present unmistakable drift of population from the country to the city it seems that we are but repeating over again the history of the principal nations of Europe during the last half of the nineteenth century and the more recent experience of New England and the middle states. The chief difference seems to be that while in them this change is far advanced, with us it has only just begun. Northwestern Canada now menaces us agriculturally just as we menaced Germany sixty years ago. Well therefore may we study this development, both here and abroad.

Like older communities, the farming sections of Wisconsin have recently failed to keep pace with the cities in wealth and population, because for the time being they were unable to hold their own in competition from two quite distinct sources. First was the indifference of the farmer to the cheap but fertile lands of the western states and Canada. To the land speculator as well as the actual cultivator these great prairie farms have often proved highly profitable. But more important still was the call of organized industry in our own rapidly growing cities for the service of ambitious and capable young men and young women reared upon the farm.

The result has been that the former healthy equilibrium between urban and rural life has been temporarily disturbed. That it will be restored again upon firmer foundations is a prediction justified by the history of every civilized country of modern times as well as by the newly aroused interest and present temper of our own people.

The experience of these older communities teaches us also that this result, when it comes about, will follow the introduction of more intelligent and intensive methods of agriculture, the employment of more economical and up-to-date ways of buying and selling the things in which every citizen has an interest and which are the basis of improvement in the social life of the country. "Better farming, better business, and better living" is the terse and expressive statement of this program of rural improvement brought to us as you know by Sir Horace Plunkett as a result of his experience in upbuilding the farming industries of Ireland.

The problem is a large and vital one. The establishment of co-operative marketing societies and the enlargement of agricultural credit along these new familiar lines in almost every country of Europe are recommended in my regular message as means whereby it may be at least partially solved. One reason why farmers have fallen behind merchants and manufacturers in economic progress is that there has been little co-ordination of effort to concert the action among them. In the purchase of things needed on the farm country people have clung to the primitive idea of each one buying for himself, although in almost every case those who supplied them were countrymen and good temper in women. Those farmers invariably paid top prices frequently for very inferior merchandise. In so doing however, they but repeated the experience of their fellows across the sea. Sir Gilbert Parker, speaking upon this subject from the standpoint of the experience of England, has said:

"Before agricultural organizations came into existence, those parts of the United Kingdom where small holdings were most abundant—Ireland and South Wales for example—were notoriously the dumping ground for the most worthless manures and seeds that the most unscrupulous merchants could collect. Now in Carmarthenshire, for instance, organization has secured for the articles of the highest quality a reduction of ten or fifteen per cent in the price of feeding stuffs, twenty

JAMES SHEARER DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

PROMINENT CITY CONTRACTOR SUDDENLY STRICKEN WITH HEART FAILURE.

HELD MANY OFFICES

Served as School Commissioner for Twenty Years.—Once Chief of the Fire Department.

James Shearer, for a generation active and prominent in the business and civic affairs of Janesville, the creator of many of the city's most important buildings and houses, a devoted worker in the Presbyterian church and Masonic fraternity, and a beloved and respected citizen, died suddenly at ten minutes to five o'clock last evening at his home, 1118 Mineral Point avenue, as the result of an attack of heart failure. Mr. Shearer had been ill and confined to his bed since last Thursday. His condition was not regarded as serious but Dr. W. A. Munro, who attended him, advised that he take a rest for a few days. Yesterday noon, when the physician called, he appeared to be stronger and there was nothing to indicate that his end was near.

James Shearer was born near Glasgow, Scotland, in the year 1839, and when a boy fourteen years of age, he emigrated to the United States. For a few months after his arrival he lived in Philadelphia, then removing to Baltimore where he resided for several years. From that city he went to St. Louis, and since 1860 he has been a resident of Janesville.

From the time of his arrival in this city Mr. Shearer was active in business, civic and church affairs. He began work as a carpenter and it was not long before his trustworthiness, his initiative and good workmanship won him high standing as a contractor. Many of the public buildings of Janesville and some of its finest homes were erected by him. Among them are the Y. M. C. A. building, the Presbyterian church, the State School for the Blind, the Adams, Grant and Webster school houses, the buildings on the county poor farm, the Janesville Traction Mill, the Janesville Garage Works, and the Postwick building on Court street. With Edward Ruger, he went to Mexico in 1881 and constructed some reservoirs of great size.

At the time of his death Mr. Shearer was vice president of the Bower City Bank, and he had been a director of that institution ever since its organization. Previous to that time he had been a director in the Merchants and Mechanics Bank. He was also a resident director of the Janesville Traction Company.

For twenty years Mr. Shearer served as school commissioner from the first ward, continuously for the last ten years. In this position he proved efficient, having at all times the welfare of the children of the city at heart. He was a candidate for re-election to this position at the coming election, his friends insisting that he continue to hold it. In 1883 he was elected alderman from his ward and held office for three years. For a long time he was foreman of the old Volunteer Hook and Ladder Company, and 1872 and 1873 he was chief of the fire department.

As a fraternal worker Mr. Shearer was always active and a trusted office holder. For twenty-five years he has been treasurer of Janesville Commandery, No. 2, Knights Templar, and he was also a member of Western Star, No. 14, F. A. M., and Janesville Chapter, No. 5, R. A. M. He had served as a trustee in all three lodges for long periods.

Mr. Shearer was an elder the Presbyterian church, having held this responsible place for many years. He had also been a trustee of the congregation, and a generous donor.

Uniform good humor, charitable opinions, sound convictions and unimpeachable integrity were traits of Mr. Shearer's character manifested in his dealings and relations with his fellow-men. He was a man to be absolutely relied upon, making himself known, not by his professions, which were modest, but by his practices. To his family he gave ungrudgingly. He was a devoted father and husband, seeking not his own, but their comfort and welfare, and his passing is to them a sore bereavement.

Those in the family circle who will mourn his loss are, his wife, four daughters, Mrs. George Stuart of Chicago, Mrs. George Brownell of Detroit, Mrs. George Buchholz of this city and Mrs. DeAlton Thomas of Chicago; and one son, John P. Shearer of Chicago. He also leaves two brothers, Dr. Thomas Shearer of Baltimore, and Robert Shearer of Ames, Ia.

Funeral services will be held at the home at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Laughlin of the Presbyterian church officiating.

Fred Schoof.
Funeral services for Fred Schoof will be held at the home of his mother, Mrs. Anna Schoof, 1221 Highland avenue, at two o'clock Thursday afternoon. Burial will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Otto M. Weckwerth.
Otto M. Weckwerth passed away at 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kirchhoff, 1002 Prairie avenue. Weckwerth was twenty-five years of age and had been sick for a long time. Surviving him are his parents, five sisters and five brothers, and a former fiancée. Funeral services will be held at the home at two o'clock Thursday afternoon, and at two-thirty o'clock in St. Paul's German Lutheran church. The Rev. C. J. Koerner will officiate and interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Ward Stapleton.
Little Ward Stapleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stapleton, died at the home of his parents, on Terrace street in Janesville, Tuesday morning, March 18, of scarlet fever. Had Ward lived until July he would have been six years old. He was a bright, lovable little fellow, and to know him was to love him. He leaves besides his parents, one sister, Ethel, and a brother, Bert. Ward was born in Footville and always lived there until a year ago this spring, when his parents moved to Janesville. The sympathy of the community and all friends are extended to the bereaved father and mother. The funeral will be private and burial in Oak Hill cemetery Tuesday afternoon.

GIVE FIRST READING TO AUTO ORDINANCE

Important Amendments to Existing Regulations Made—Speed Limits More Liberal.

Important amendments to the city ordinance regulating the speed and operation of automobiles are proposed in the ordinance drawn by City Attorney Dougherty and given its first reading at the meeting of the council this afternoon. Outside the limits of a prescribed district the speed limit is made fifteen miles an hour and automobiles are forbidden to pass street or interurban cars, or to discharging passengers. The provisions in full are as follows:

An ordinance to amend sub-section two, three and four of Section 1 of Chapter 6 of the Revised General Ordinances:

1. No person under the age of eighteen years shall drive any automobile or motorcycle upon any public street in the city of Janesville.

2. Said sub-section three of Section 1 of Chapter 6 is hereby amended to read as follows:

No person shall drive any automobile or motorcycle at a rate of speed exceeding eight miles an hour, within that part of the city of Janesville, which is bounded as follows: On the east by the east line of North and South Bluff streets, on the south by the south line of Court street and Pleasant street, on the north by the north line of Prospect avenue and West Bluff street, and on the west by the west line of Prospect avenue and West Bluff street.

In all other parts of said city the maximum speed for such motor-vehicles shall be fifteen miles per hour with the limitation that no person shall, on any highway outside of the district herein specifically restricted, operate or drive any automobile, motorcycle or other similar vehicles recklessly or at a rate of speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the width, traffic and use of the highways and the general and usual rules of the road, or in such manner as to endanger the property, life, or limb, of anyone using said highway.

Section 3. Subsection four of Section 1 of Chapter 6 of Revised General Ordinances is hereby amended to read as follows:

4. Drivers of automobiles and motorcycles shall keep their respective vehicles on the right hand side of the roadway of every street upon which they may run the same and no automobile or motorcycle shall be driven upon any street or interurban car while such car is standing in any highway and taking on or discharging passengers; and when any such driver shall intend to turn a street corner with his vehicle he shall seasonably slacken the speed of the same so that it will not pass within the limits of the street intersected in which such street corner is located at a rate of speed exceeding six miles per hour, and shall make such turn by maintaining such right-hand course until such vehicle reaches the right hand side of the highway upon which it is to be further driven. And no such automobile or motorcycle shall be left unattended on any highway unless the engine thereof shall have been first stopped.

Section 4. This ordinance shall be in force and take effect from and after ten days following its passage.

GROWS BEAUTIFUL, HEAVY HAIR

WE PROVE IT—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Destroys dandruff—Stops falling hair—Cleans and invigorates your scalp
Delightful dressing—Doesn't color the hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance; freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp.

Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once. If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, just moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

TO EMPLOY A DIVER IN WORK ON BRIDGE

Man Arrives From Chicago Today to Perform Under Water Work on Railroad Bridge Over Rock River.

On discovering that there was a large trunk of a tree firmly embedded in the river bed and at it was impossible for the work of driving the sheeting of the coffer dam until it had been removed, a diver was at once sent for and he arrived this morning. He will be put to work placing the block and chains around the stump tomorrow. There is also some other work, which will necessitate an under water worker. The river at this point is the deepest of any place above the upper dam it being estimated that the bed is about twenty feet from the surface. While the diver has no ice to contend with the temperature of the water is far from pleasant.

Twenty new men were added to the bridge building force and with favorable weather the work is expected to continue without a break. Six feet of cement has been laid into the first coffer dam and a force of workmen are engaged in pumping the water out of the inclosure. Two pumps are employed in the pumping. It is thought that a larger pump will have to be employed as there is a swift current at this point besides the high pressure caused by taking away the water from the interior. When the water is all out, and the cement that forms the foundation of the pier is hard, the entire dam will be filled and extended to the piers. Work of driving the sheeting for the coffer dam was halted by the discovery of the big stump and as there is three dams to fill the diver's services will be needed for some time.

The stone slabs which will form the foundation for the road bed have arrived and a force of workmen are busily engaged in preparing them for laying.

Chicago & Northwestern.
THREE YOUNG MEN PASS ENGINEERS' EXAMINATION

Frank Duley, R. B. Uppan and William Coen, who took the engineers' examination a short time ago, gained the information that all three had been successful and passed with extraordinary high standings. The three young men have worked for the Northwestern line for some time past being employed as firemen. They will be assigned for engineering work in the near future.

Engine number 217, which has been in the shops for repairs was sent out this morning.

The roundhouse force has been added to and Charles Robinson has been engaged as a dispatcher's helper.

Engineer Townsend is on the five o'clock switch engine.

HOPE TO BRING BACK THE DEBATE HONORS

This morning at ten-thirty, the local affirmative debating team, composed of Stanley Judd leader, Benjamin Kullow and Harold Mohr, left for Racine where they meet the Racine negative team at the high school auditorium at seven-thirty tonight, on the question, Resolved, that in the interests of world peace, the United States begin to diminish its proportional naval expenditures." They left full of confidence and were accompanied by Prof. John Arbuthnot of the high school faculty. They hope to bring home the gold medals which will be given the winners, together with a loving cup, which will be awarded at Beloit.

At two o'clock this afternoon the local negative team departed for Beloit, to debate on the same question. Allen Dearborn, leader Russell Smiley and Charles Noyes make up the trio, and they expect to win over the Racine affirmative team. Both schools are evenly matched, and Prof. Euell has the impression that the local orators will make a strong showing and return home victors.

TALENT FAILS TO APPEAR FOR APOLLO CLUB RECITAL

The two Japanese who had been booked for the closing recital of the year before the Apollo club failed to put in an appearance last evening and it was found necessary to arrange a program on a moment's notice. George S. Parker, president of the club, talked with the Chicago manager to day over the phone and learned that the artists had left Chicago yesterday with full intentions of coming here. The Chicago manager was surprised at their failure to appear and said there must have been a misunderstanding of some sort.

CHIROPRACTIC

(KI-RO-PRAC-TIC)

The new road to health. The only method ever discovered for eradication of disease by going directly at the cause.

An organ of the body being out of order, weak or diseased is an effect, a symptom, but it is not the cause; disturbed nerve function is the cause.

When an electric motor or lamp fails to work properly because a current is interrupted, the electrician does not attribute the cause to them, but traces the wire to the place of disturbance, and adjusts it, then the wire can carry the needed current.

When an organ of the body fails to perform its function properly it is because the life current is disturbed or cut off. A chiropractor like the electrician, does not attribute the cause to the machine or organ, but traces the nerve to the place of disturbance and adjusts it, giving free and normal transmission to the vital or life current.

The cause of every individual disease common to the human body is within the body and the cure is there also.

Disturbed nerve function makes disease; a chiropractor will remove this disturbance and Nature does the rest.

Call and let us explain in detail.

GINK AND DINK.

Sport Snap Shots

by Dan McCarty

Those Boston Braves sure do have tough luck. Manager Stallings now is trying to convert Art Bues, the slugging third-baseman into an outfielder because of the dearth of capable fly-chasers. The only other players available are Seymour, Kirk, Jackson, and Titus. Kirk is below standard in fielding while Seymour's pins are not what they used to be. The retirement of Vincent Campbell, the stellar out-gardener, is a serious loss to the team.

An interpreter is carried by the Washington club for the benefit of the two young Cuban players, Acosta and Calvo, who have not yet mastered English. They both play ball cleverly though. Calvo is a hunter of the Willie Keeler type while Acosta is a remarkably heavy hitter. The interpreter, it may be explained, is none other than Joe Gallia, pitcher held on trial from the Kansas City club of the American Association. He speaks Spanish fluently, and has practically adopted the two Cubans.

Talking about natural hitters, our old friend J. Franklin Baker, of the Philadelphia Athletics would appear to be one. The man who broke the hearts of Mathewson and Marquard celebrated his first appearance in uniform the other day by batting out three singles, a double, and a triple in an exhibition game with the San Antonio club.

This Indian, Jim Thorpe, refuses to be downed by the white man's game of big league baseball. He has pretty nearly won himself a place as regular outfielder on the New York Giants, in spite of ragged fielding. He boosted his stock considerably the other day when in a practice game between the yanigans and the regulars, he knocked a home run off the delivery of one Christy Mathewson. About the last time anybody had done that was in the world's series of 1911, when one J. Franklin Baker, of Trappe, Maryland, similarly abused one of Matty's most select slants. Matty is still wondering how the alonism did it.

In spite of the attitude of indifference taken by Muggsy McGraw, the Giant manager would appear to be worrying a bit about the continued hold-out of Southpaw Rube Marquard. Muggsy sent Scout Dick Kinsela out to San Francisco recently to see what the Rube thought about things in general. Dick found that the hurler-actor hadn't been doing a single bit of thinking since he last declared that he intended to remain on the stage rather than play under the terms of the three-year contract by which he still is held.

President Jimmy McAleer of the Boston Red Sox is confident that his team will repeat and this year again win the American League pennant. He says that the team is 25 per cent stronger in every department than it was a year ago, for his players all are young men bound to improve in ability. He declares that the Athletics, which Connie Mack has prophesied will land on top, can hardly be expected to find their veteran pitching staff, upon which Mack relies, as good as last year. Still, Jimmy admits that Connie has the best infield in the league. It's a cinch that the Athletics and some other teams, too, will make the Red Sox hustle. Some of them appear to be even more than 25 per cent better than last year—New York, Cleveland and St. Louis being examples.

GAME WITH BELOIT LAST ON SCHEDULE

Janesville Will Meet Line City Five on Beloit Floor on Friday of This Week.

On Friday night of this week, the local high school basketball team will battle with the Beloit high school five in the locals' last scheduled game of the season. This marks the close of the locals' season with the exception of a practice game with the Altonians on the rink floor, on Saturday night of this week and the state tournament.

The Beloit game should be a run-away for the locals, but they are out only to win, and not to pile up the score. It is thought that Beloit would rather not play this game, but owing to the schedule and constitutions of the basketball league, of which both teams are members, the game must be played. The locals feel that they could play some stronger team in place of the Line City five, and in doing so the locals would be given much better practice for the tournament. The locals expect to enter the state meet on the 27th of the month, with a clean record, and in the pink of condition.

A fairly large crowd is expected to attend this game at Beloit Friday, but it is not necessary for the school to charter a special car, because the game will be one-sided and uninteresting.

"GOLDEN RULE" TO GO IN CLEVELAND

Fred Kohler.

With the dismissal from office of Fred Kohler, Cleveland police chief, apparently a certain event of the near future, the "golden rule" policy advocated by this well-known police official seems doomed to pass away not only in Cleveland, but in other cities where it is being given a trial. It has been Kohler's policy to treat criminals, especially first offenders, with compassion. Just now Cleveland is being swept by a wave of crime and the "golden rule" policy is no longer regarded as safe by the citizens.

HOPPE AND MORNINGSTAR WILL PLAY FOR TITLE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Pittsburgh, Pa., March 18.—Devotees of billiards are manifesting a lively interest in the contest to be played here tomorrow night by Ora Morningstar and Willie Hoppe. The match, which will be of 60 points, will be for the world's championship at 18.1 ball. The title is now held by Morningstar, who won it from Hoppe something over a year ago and recently defended it successfully against George Sutton. Hoppe, the present challenger, already holds the 18.2 title and if he regains the 18.1 championship he will again have a virtual monopoly of the premier titles in the green table sport.

The Theatre

George M. Cohan continues to develop, and in that there is cause for satisfaction, for Mr. Cohan, both as a writer and an actor has shown an unusual capacity for conveying to the stage a record of genuine impressions. In "Broadway" Jones, his latest play, which is shortly to be presented here, his types and his scenes, though occasionally admitting exaggeration, designed to increase their humorous or theatrical effectiveness, are certainly rays of the sun.

"Broadway" Jones could not by any chance be converted into a Piccadilly Jones, for he is as truly a United States as that flag which in some of his songs Mr. Cohan converted to his own particular uses.

Mr. Cohan in his contract with life has apparently discovered that a true thing is in the long run, a satisfactory as well as an appealing thing, and in analyzing "Broadway" Jones, as well as all the plays that have come from his pen, this assertion becomes more and more apparent. His characters have become more and more like the actualities, and that without any sacrifice of interest. "Broadway" Jones, for instance, has a wonderful windfall just at the moment when it will serve him best, and the speech the author has given to him are the natural outgrowth of the environ-

A TWIN FOR A TWIN
Everything was prepared for the wedding. The bride had on her veil and her pink suede shoes and 18 pounds of rice were in readiness. For it was to be a large wedding.

But where was the groom?
"Where is the groom?" they asked the embarrassed bride. "He was invited, wasn't he?"

"Yes," replied the bride. "It was to have been his wedding, too. I don't understand it. It is peculiar, odd, funny."

The minister, growing tired of waiting, lit his pipe, and the guests began to yawn.

The groom was now two hours late. At fashionable weddings it is a poor groom who is more than an hour late. Poor groom!

Ah, a messenger boy! A telegram, from the bride's twin sister. It read: "Dear twin, great joke. Groom met me, thought I was you, proposed, an elopement to avoid the bother of a wedding, and I eloped. We are now married. Excuse penmanship."

The bride smiled, and when the guests were shown the telegram they smiled, too. It was too funny!

Nature's Balance of Power.

In view of facts, one is almost willing to accept the statement of a well-known French scientist, who has asserted that without birds to check the ravages of insects, human life would vanish from this planet in the space of nine years. But for the vegetation the insects would perish; but for the insects the birds would perish, and but for the birds vegetation would be destroyed. Nature has, therefore, formed a delicate balance of power which cannot be disturbed without bringing great loss and unhappiness to the world.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY
You will be fortunate in a material way, either by receiving rich gifts or by advance in business. Traveling should be avoided and enthusiasm for acquaintances should be kept well curbed.

Those born today will be alert and enterprising, but will meet with many reverses in their early careers. Later they will attain high positions. The idea of this ultimate success should be impressed on their minds early, together with a thorough understanding of their social gifts and tendencies.

Hanging Shades.

When buying window shades get an extra set of catches. Put one set at the usual place, the other about a foot lower. In cold weather hang the shades on the lower catches and leave the window down from the top. This gives perfect ventilation and prevents the shade from blowing about.

Kissing Conjugated.
"Sam" Slick once said that kisses were like conjugation—made out of nothing and very good; and another American writer thus conjugated the verb "to kiss." "Buss to kiss; rebus, to kiss again; pluribus, to kiss without regard to numbers; syllabus, to kiss the hands instead of the lips; blunderbus, to kiss the wrong person; erbus, to kiss in the dark; omnibus, to kiss every one in the room."

PORRIDGE AND POTATOES.

The Topeka (Kansas) State Journal is much excited over the reported attacks upon the sacred institutions of the Irish and Scotch national dishes. It sees a dread peril, even greater than the Yellow Peril of the east in the dispatch from Edinburgh, which calls attention to the growing distaste of the native Scot for his traditional oatmeal "Porritch," and expresses the belief that something should be done at once to check the evil. What a leak means to a Holland like this breach in the Scottish dietary means to the nation. The Scot is strong and healthy, canny and thrifty, because of oatmeal, he thinks. It is in the bone and sinew of the man and of the nation. Anything else might make citizen and state flabby, the old-fashioned arguer.

It is not the "whisky" which gives spirit to the Scottish character, though one might have a different belief after the course of the St. Andrew's society at Washington, which was given its choice of a dramsless banquet graced by women or one with John Barleycorn taking her vacant seat. Its members voted against the women.

It is oatmeal which has built him and kept him up. It is cheap, and that's no argument against it in his eyes. It is easy to prepare, which gives him more time for work and for theological discussion. And it is nourishing. If he will overlook these virtues and take to other and less historic food, then he cannot blame fate for his subsequent misfortunes.

In like manner Ireland is threatened. Some wild-eyed scientist has found a substitute for the potato and proposes to plant it there in place of the famous tuber. What folly! Aside from the monoclasm of the idea—the blow at history and sentimental traditions—this new vegetable called the "dasheen" doesn't come within hailing distance of the potato for taste. It is more mealy than a potato, which is one item against it, and another opinion of it described the flavor as similar to that of a roasted chestnut.

That alone would cause Ireland and the Irish, no matter where they live, to rise in righteous anger against it. The Italians have supplanted the Irish in construction work, almost entirely. That doesn't breed any too good feeling. And now to seek to oust the potato for the chestnut is too much. Donnybrook Fair will be a mild Sunday school picnic compared to the meeting of the Irish with the man who wants to palm the dasheen off on them.

THE PLAYGROUND PROBLEM.

In discussing this subject the Fond du Lac Commonwealth, under the caption, "Playgrounds in Small Towns," gives the following opinion on the subject. As Fond du Lac and Janesville are sister cities where much the same conditions exist, it is interesting to note their views on this interesting question.

"The action of the Illinois legislature in paving the way for the extension of the playgrounds movement to the small towns of that state simply goes to emphasize the fact that the people are coming to a fuller realization of the importance of this question year by year. In the larger cities, that is to say in the most of them, the playgrounds movement has taken definite form and the children have been provided with beautiful parks and playgrounds. The middle class and smaller cities have not been so progressive and yet their need is equally as great. Children must and will play. If there are no playgrounds provided where they may have wholesome environments, then they will play where the environments are not wholesome—usually the street and not infrequently the alley. And the street and alley education that the children receive in cities of from 10,000 to 20,000 population is just about as dangerous as that which is acquired in the larger cities.

"It doesn't require great foresight to comprehend the cost of this kind of education. After the street comes the juvenile court, then the justice court and the higher tribunals, to say nothing of houses of correction and jails—all of which cost money. And this leaves out of account the sorrow brought to the homes and also the economic waste to the community. The playground as a business proposition is worth while and that explains why the larger cities have long since made liberal investments not only in playgrounds, but in paraphernalia to equip them and supervisors to have charge of them. The bill which has just passed the Illinois senate and which will undoubtedly pass the house provides means by which the smaller towns may establish playgrounds and this legislation may point the way for other states."

EASTER EGGS.

Why we associate the eggs with the Easter season has always been a problem to solve. The Easter eggs, the little rabbit, the present day Easter cards, the Easter flowers are all associated with the day. However, Dr. Washington Gladden, in the Woman's Home Companion, makes the following explanation of the custom of using eggs at this Spring festival.

"Probably the fact that the egg holds, shut up in itself, the elements of future life—a life which may long be dormant and then come forth into vigor and beauty, into consciousness and activity—made it a proper symbol of the resurrection. But of all the millions who have decorated eggs at the Easter season or played with them as a pretty toy, or fed upon them as a delicacy, very few have ever stopped to reflect upon the profound meaning of the emblem. In my own boyhood a breakfast of eggs was one of the unwritten regulations of Easter Sunday; the main question with the boys was the number per capita that could be consumed. Among us there was none of that dainty decoration with dyes and pigments which has given so much pleasure in old times and new. This fashion, in the opinion of an old writer, 'arose among the Christians from the joy occasioned by their returning to their favorite food, after a long abstinence from them during Lent.' This was not impossible, for the egg was formerly counted as flesh and denied to good Christians during the Lenten season."

It is peculiar that the men who really need watching are always the ones who would have the press muzzled. The average citizen likes to read the news as it really is.

BOOK REVIEW.

The Shores of the Pacific.

A garden of the Hesperides, where in platonic groves the proudest of the human intellect are to appear, and the consummation of human advancement to be wrought out. For in a single line may be given the history and destiny of the race: First, the Mediterranean; then the Atlantic, and last and lordliest of all, the Pacific.

There is here every condition for the supreme evolution of the race; there are here all that all the world elsewhere can give, all soils and climates, all the natural wealth and resources, all the wild display and all the charm and beauty that nature offers to conscious intelligence. These conditions will unfold themselves to the minds of men but slowly, yet more and more to those who can appreciate them, the paramount importance of the occupation of this region will be felt.

Temperate and tropical lands alike call to the brave and adventurous. All that nature gives to man is offered; all that man can give to nature awaits his effort. Wealth can be enterprise from barbarous lands whose millions are loosely held, as well as from half or wholly civilized peoples, with intellects sharpened by rude culture. There are riches illimitable on the shores of the Pacific for those that can achieve them. Under the snows of Alaska alone is more mineral wealth than has ever been brought to light since the days of Solomon: gold, silver and copper, iron, coal and oil. Here, where three great mountain ranges come together and terminate, were tumbled in by the creative hand all that was left over of the waste land made and kept hidden away for these great things.

And all along the borders of the two Americas, what gave the Mediterranean to the ancients, or the Atlantic to western civilization to compare with the coal and forest of British Columbia and Puget Sound, the bonanzas of Nevada, the Potomac silver mountains of Peru, and vast areas of grain and fruit lands everywhere.

For coming ages the shores of the Pacific will be the amphitheatre of achievement, the land of wealth and refinement, the seat of learning and culture. Were it not well there, there to look into the matter a little further, study the situation and be ready to profit by an accession of the fullest and most reliable information. And where can this be found presented more ably or in a more attractive form than in Bancroft's Retrospective and New Pacific? Published by the Bancroft Company of New York.

With such a theme so handled, dealing largely in natural resources, and ways of development, in agriculture and commerce, in mines and manufactures, in history and romance, these two books in the hands of men of energy and ideas are a key to wealth as well the means of intellectual enlightenment.

"Booth Tarkington is very difficult to please in matters theatrical," said a Philadelphia novelist.

Tarkington was visiting me here during the run of one of his own plays, and after dinner one evening we sauntered to the theater. But the doorman didn't know us and for some little time refused to let us in. Finally, though, Tarkington's identity was established, and we were conducted to a stage box.

But the performance wasn't up to much. Tarkington edged in his chair, and at the end of the first act he suggested that we go. On our way out I saw my illustrious friend peering anxiously about the lobby. "What are you looking for?" I said. "I'm looking," said Tarkington, "for that chap who wouldn't let us in. I want to give him a quarter."

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PAYSON TERNHUNE

CHIEF JOSEPH.

Down the slope of White Bird canyon, in the gray dawn of June 17, 1877, marched a company of ninety United States soldiers and ten armed frontiersmen. Colonel Perry was at their head. They were on the trail of a band of hostile Nez Perce Indians. A thin rack of smoke far down the gorge warned them they were nearing the Indian camp. Moving forward with caution, Perry planned to take the camp by surprise. The canyon was silent as a grave. The savages were apparently asleep. It looked as though the soldiers would win an easy victory.

Suddenly the rocky trail in front burst into a whirlwind of flame and powder smoke. From behind every bush and boulder sprang a tongue of fire. At the same moment the top of a ridge at the south side of the canyon bristled with war banners and blazed into sudden furious action. The whole gorge reverberated with rifle shots. The troops were mowed down on every side, even while their officers sought vainly to restore the shattered ranks to some sort of order. Out of the Indian death trap rushed the troops and frontiersmen in wild, panic-stricken retreat. And after them ran the victorious Indians, chasing their beaten enemies to within four miles of Fort Idaho.

Battle of the Canyon.

In a battle against sixty Indians, Perry and one hundred men had been whipped, with a loss of about one-third their number. And the savage to whom the victory was due was a tall, grave-faced Nez Perce, named by his own people "Hin-Mah-Too-Yah-Lat-Keet" (Rolling Mountain Thunder), but known to history as "Chief Joseph."

His "nation," the Chute-Pa-Lu, were called "Nez Perce" (Pierced Nose) by early French colonists, from their ancient custom of wearing nose rings. They were a mighty clan, living in the present states of Oregon, Idaho and Washington. They were more civilized than most Indians and were friendly to the white pioneers. Their most treasured tract of land was the beautiful Wallowa valley in northeastern Oregon. White men encroached on this valley, and, by a treaty in 1863, the government secured it from the Nez Perces. The Indians were ordered to leave their old home and go to the Lapwai reservation in Idaho. The majority of them obeyed. But many stayed where they were, under Joseph's leadership. Joseph was at this time only twenty-two, but he had already taken his aged father's place as chief.

In spite of the chiefs' protests the government early in 1877 sent Gen. O. O. Howard to oust Joseph and his fellow Indians from the Wallowa. He ordered them to leave within thirty days. In vain they protested against leaving their crops before fall, and said they could not collect their straying cattle in so short a time. Joseph, to avoid trouble, at last consented to go. But before the thirty days were up several Indians were wantonly killed by white settlers. The Nez Perces sprang to arms in revolt. Joseph was forced, reluctantly, to take the leadership of the uprising. He marched his little band of warriors with their squaws and children to White Bird canyon. There, on June 17, he met Perry and won the first victory of the Nez Perce war.

General Howard and a force of troops with cannon now went after the victorious Indians. On July 11 he found Joseph and 300 warriors waiting behind breastworks on the Clearwater river. For two days the battle raged. Then, unable to withstand the artillery, the Indians withdrew. Joseph, by a clever ruse, got them safely away, and then, by a sudden flank movement, threw his pursuers into disorder. Thence he took his followers over an almost impenetrable mountain pass into safety. General Gibbon with 200 cavalry fell upon them at dawn on August 5, only to be beaten off with heavy loss. The pursuit, however, grew all the more hot. The telegraph kept the government apprised of the fugitives' movements. From every side the troops were rushed against Joseph.

A Broken Pledge.

Detachments under Miles, Howard and Sturgis sought in vain to hem him in. For one thousand miles he conducted his wonderful retreat. Then, only fifty miles from the Canadian border, he was stopped by a fresh body of troops in front of him. The chief sort word to Sitting Bull, who was hiding in Canada with twelve hundred hostile Sioux, to come to his help. Sitting Bull would not do it. Joseph could still have escaped with ease, but would not leave his wounded and the women and children. At last, on General Miles' promise that they might return to the Wallowa valley in peace, he surrendered. This was on October 5, 1877. The government repudiated Miles' promise and sent the gallant chief and his followers to Indian territory.

In one reservation after another Chief Joseph lived, shorn of power and hopeless, but ever trying to help his luckless people. After visiting the St. Louis exposition, where he protested angrily against exhibiting himself for money, he went back to his reservation, where, on September 21, 1904, he died.

We Keep the Quality up

Quality is the fundamental principle in good storekeeping as in farming.

It costs no more, in transportation, handling, warehousing, insurance, number of people employed, display and advertising for good qualities than for poor.

Dealing may safely be closer in good quality stuffs; quantities may safely be larger; satisfaction and goodwill will assuredly be great.

An error was committed in announcing PATHE'S WEEKLY for Wednesday, at the Lyric. The day is Thursday.

Wednesday's booking is the Lubin two-reel feature "THE MEXICAN SPY."

Mr. John Bunny, the well-known Vitagraph comedian, has finally realized his ambition to play a heavy part. He was sent to England with one of the Vitagraph companies and played the part of Pickwick in "PICKWICK PAPERS." He did the work with wonderful success.

If you do not object to learning something while you are being entertained, watch for C. G. P. C. films. There will be one Friday at the Lyric, on the Snmarine Maneuvers and the Pitcher Plant.

By the way, watch the Lyric for these really high class, worth-while films.

That leads to the remark that you may hear something soon about better motion pictures and where you can find them.

COMPLETE ARGUMENTS IN BELDEN'S TRIAL

COUNSEL MAKE PLEAS THIS AFTERNOON IN CASE OF MAN CHARGED WITH MURDER OF EDWARD P. RYAN.

CASE READY FOR JURY

Instructions by Judge Grimm Will Be Given Late Today and Jury Will Retire to Consider Verdict.

Until some time after three o'clock this afternoon the jury in the circuit court in the case of Louis Belden, charged with the murder of Edward P. Ryan, were addressed by counsel for the prosecution and the defense.

The defense rested its case at twenty-five minutes to three o'clock following the testimony of the accused. His mother, Mrs. Carrie Belden, who was called to testify as to the condition of her son when she saw him after the affair with Ryan, was the only other witness called this afternoon.

Judge Grimm will give his charge to the jury late today and verdict was expected some time tonight.

Belden's testimony was concerned with his encounter with Ryan. Belden maintained that Ryan knocked him down, held him with his knee on the pit of his (Belden's) stomach, and with one hand gouging at his eyes. In mortal terror, as he claimed he was, Belden said he reached for his razor and slashed his assailant across the face.

District Attorney Danwidin in his plea to the jury stated that there were some facts which had been presented by the accused that were inconsistent. He dwelt especially on the story that Belden was able to secure his razor while lying on his back and with his eyes closed and painfully gouged at, and slash blindly at Ryan. He referred to Belden's subsequent statement to the railroad men that he "got" Belden and "got him bad."

Attorney J. J. Cunningham for the defense in his plea dwelt on the character and reputation of the dead man Ryan. How he was famed throughout the city as a dangerous and quarrelsome man. He called attention to the testimony in regard to Belden. There was nothing derogatory to his character offered. He was a fair, average fellow about town. He had never had any trouble with Ryan and was not of a quarrelsome kind. What he did, the counsel urged, was in self-defense.

State Rests Case.

At eleven-twenty this morning the state rested its case. A long list of witnesses had been examined and cross-examined. They included members of the local police force, railroad employees who talked with Belden on the day of Ryan's death at the South Janesville yards. The list of those who testified included: William Conley, proprietor of the lunch wagon; Leroy Stoddard, Theodore Miller, Charles Kruse, W. A. Ingram, John Brown, Sam Brown, Frank Vaughan, M. C. Smith and Frank Clough. The three last named witnesses stated that Belden's face was bruised and scratched when they saw him at the railroad yards and that he looked as though "he had been run roughly."

Testimony was given in regard to conversation which the various railroad employees had with the defendant. Eight witnesses for the defense were rapidly examined before the noon recess and Attorney Cunningham stated that he wished to place the defendant on the stand at two o'clock. He had only a few other witnesses to examine.

Piano Tuner's Story.
George C. Nebel, of Madison, the pianist, who Ryan is alleged to have threatened before his encounter with Belden, was the first witness called for the defense. He told of going into the lunch car where he found Ryan. Ryan said, "You are the man who had me arrested," and started toward him with hand stretched out. Ambrose Ryan interfered at this point and Nebel left the lunch room. He stated that Ryan later crossed to the depot after him, but admitted no cross-examination that he did not know that he was after him particularly as he said nothing to him.

Mrs. Frieda Larsen of Scoughton, Belden's sister, testified in regard to the razor which she said her brother always carried in a leather case attached to a string around his neck.

Patrolman Peter Champion, former Turnkey Philo Kemp, Thomas Nolan, and A. E. Thorpe were witnesses called to testify in regard to the quarrelsome and general reputation of Ryan. Mr. Thorpe, clerk of the municipal court, read a list of convictions for assault and battery and drunkenness which appear against Ryan on the docket of the municipal court.

Thomas E. Welsh and Walter Helms testified in regard to the general reputation which Belden enjoyed. Mr. Helms stated that he found Belden a reliable worker, never inclined to be surly or quarrelsome.

First Witnesses Testified.
Dr. G. W. Fifield, the physician who was called to attend Edward D. Ryan on the morning of the fight with Belden, was the first witness called by the prosecution Monday afternoon. Dr. Fifield told of arriving at the Railroad Hotel about fifteen minutes to two on the morning of the fight, and finding Ryan in the hotel office bleeding profusely from deep gashes across his face, and how he dressed the wounds and later accompanied the man to the police station where he was given quarters in the woman's cell.

During the time that he was occupied in dressing the cuts, Dr. Fifield said Ryan talked violently and required three or four men to hold him on the table while he treated him. Death later in the morning was due to loss of blood and the shock to his nervous system.

On cross examination Dr. Fifield said that the fact that Ryan was under the influence of liquor at the time might have contributed and doubtless did hasten his end. He admitted that if a physician could have taken charge of him immediately after the cuts were received there would have been practically no danger of death.

Ambrose Ryan, cousin of the deceased, was the second and only other witness called Monday afternoon. He told of his presence in the lunch wagon near the Railroad Hotel when Edward Ryan came in. He described what occurred when Belden entered and repeated as nearly as possible the conversation. Belden went out first and was shortly followed by Ryan, but the witness thought nothing of it and believed that Belden had plenty of time to escape. The next he remembered was hearing his cousin calling at the corner of the lunch wagon. He went out and found him bleeding badly about the face. He then went to the hotel to summon a physician.

Ambrose stated that he did not hear his cousin ask for a butcher knife with which to pursue his assailant and that alleged statement was made while he was at the hotel. All he could gain from his cousin as to the identity of his adversary was that "he would get that big nigger."

Following the examination of Ambrose Ryan the officers were sworn to take charge of the jury and the judge gave his instructions.

TO SOON HAVE PLANS FOR BANK BUILDING

First National Will Have Greatly Enlarged Quarters—Work to Begin About July 1.

Plans for the new building of the First National Bank, now in the hands of the architects, are rapidly nearing completion, and will probably be turned over to the directors of the corporation by the middle of next month. Bids for the construction of the building will be asked for as soon as the plans are approved, and actual work will begin about July 1, according to officers of the bank.

The entire new building, which will have a frontage of forty-one feet on Milwaukee street, and a depth of ninety feet, extending back to the alley, will be devoted to banking purposes. This area will include the ground now occupied by the Hemming & Byrne saloon on Milwaukee street, and the saloon of Philip Reuss on North River street.

Hemming & Byrne will occupy the quarters recently occupied by the Harry Schmidley restaurant, now being remodeled. The lease of Philip Reuss does not expire until July 1.

BELOIT COUPLE UNITED IN MARRIAGE AT TWO O'CLOCK

Mr. Charles Gleason and Miss Josephine Bliss, both of Beloit, secured a special permit, and were united in marriage this afternoon at two o'clock at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. Williams. After the ceremony the happy couple left for a short honeymoon for Chicago and Wheaton, where the bride's parents reside.

Mr. John Neuhauer, flute and piccolo soloist of Milwaukee, has been engaged to play with the Geo. L. Hatch orchestra and will accept a few pupils. Those desiring instruction notify Mr. Hatch.—Advertisement.

to thirty per cent. in the price of seeds, and thirty to forty per cent. in the cost of artificial manures.

But the purchases of necessary supplies is not the only operation in which farmers have suffered. They have suffered. They have also paid heavy toll to the trusts in the sale of their products. It is no extravagance to say that farmers as a rule are not good business men. Ordinarily each one disposes separately of his own cattle, grain or potatoes as the case may be. Thus the quantity involved in each sale is necessarily small and classification as to quality for purposes of standardization is out of the question. This is but another way of saying that as a rule when the farmer needs money he throws his product upon the market at whatever price it will bring.

Here again the farmer has fallen far behind his brother producer of the city. He has neglected the commercial side of farming. Working night and day he has been successful as a producer but through want of business management he has allowed others to pocket the profits. Better business is therefore his most urgent need. Like a factory, the farm should be run on sound principles of marketing. No industrial concern would last long that sold its output as farmers have long been accustomed to selling theirs—virtually to the first comer or at public auction. Here is where the principle of co-operation is likely to prove most valuable. It permits of specialization in agriculture. While the farmer is cultivating his fields or caring for his stock, the co-operative agency to which he belongs is busy grading, packing and stamping what he has to sell, making contracts for its shipment and disposition at advantageous prices, watching with experienced eye every turn of the market so as to miss no opportunity for profit and arranging for additional capital or larger credit as either may be required by him.

Because of these advantages the writer just quoted tells us that there are nearly 16,000 agricultural co-operative societies in France, 19,000 in Germany, 7,000 in Austria-Hungary, over 3,500 in Italy, nearly 2,000 in Belgium, nearly 2,000 in Switzerland, over 700 in Finland, nearly 900 in Ireland, and about 2,100 in Denmark. In all of these places co-operation was resorted to only as the last means of saving agriculture from what appeared to be a fatal decline. It will be the part of wisdom for the people of Wisconsin to consider the merits of this form of rural self help before an acute stage of agricultural depression has been reached.

There is excellent reason also for the belief that the high cost of living is but another result of the deep underlying causes that have partly depopulated the countryside. The great commercial and manufacturing concerns we refer to every day as trusts have waxed strong and wealthy not only by paying the farmer a little less than they should for every bushel of grain and pound of butter he produces, but also by charging each customer a little more than is fair for every article he buys. Thus every now and then the anomaly exists of beef being "high upon the hook but low upon the hoof," of potatoes selling for 30 cents a bushel delivered at the railway station in Waupaca County, while on the same day they cost the consumer in Milwaukee 85 cents, although the expense of shipping them in carload lots from Waupaca to Milwaukee is only six and one-half cents per bushel; of cabbage for which farmers around River Falls were paid $2.00 a ton selling at the same time in the Chicago market at a dollar and a half a hundred, or thirty dollars a ton; although the freight between the two points was only three dollars a ton; and of a multitude of other similar examples of moderate prices on the farm contemporaneous with a rapid rise in the cost of living everywhere. Possibly some of this difference may be due to depreciation of perishable products, but surely not all of it. There is a growing feeling that our distributive processes are out of gear and that they absorb altogether too much of what the ultimate consumer pays for the necessities of life.

However this may be it is very plain that there is no necessary antagonism of interest between the consumer who wants the cost of living lower and the farmer who demands higher prices for his products. High prices for farm products may indeed be one of the most potent means of reducing the cost of living. High prices ordinarily induce increased production; and unless the demands should meanwhile grow in the same proportion the inevitable result of a more abundant supply of the necessities of life will be lower prices to the consumer. At the same time increased productivity of the farm inures to the direct well-being of the most thrifty and conservative element of our population and thus indirectly to the stability of the state itself.

As matters now stand the primary industry of the Middle West is threatened with comparative stagnation and the people whether in the country or the city suffer because of tribute levied upon them by great combinations and trusts. Why should we not reverse this process and so restore normal economic conditions? Inasmuch as the trust has grown up largely by exactions enforced from producers and consumers alike because of its strategic position intermediate between them, why can it not be destroyed or its power greatly curtailed, by inducing these two great classes to deal directly with each other? By so doing better prices will be secured for the products of the farm as well as a substantial decrease in the cost of living. The present widespread popular interest in the subject of co-operation at least justifies us in giving this problem our most serious consideration.

But co-operation will not come of its own accord. Our own experience and the history of this movement elsewhere demonstrate this. There must be governmental assistance of some sort. At first this assistance will naturally take the form of education and legal authorization; but it should not stop here. For some time to come the establishment of co-operative enterprise should be publicly supervised so as to avoid as many mistakes as possible. Just now the farmers of Sheboygan County are appealing to the state to help them establish co-operative associations for the marketing of cheese. The Board of Public Affairs and the University have responded as fully as their means will permit or the authority conferred upon them by law will justify. Present limitations in these respects are such that neither can go very far; but it would be cause for very great regret if for want of the right sort of assistance interested in this new venture should fail to organize upon the safest and soundest basis that can be devised.

Then there is this other consideration: the field these new ventures are about to enter is by no means now unoccupied. The business of buying cheese is well established. During the past two years it has been rapidly concentrating in a few hands. Quite recently the great packing houses have become deeply interested in it. One would be an optimist indeed to believe that a co-operative society representing merely the interests of producers and consumers will be permitted without a struggle to secure control of the cheese market.

The same thing is illustrated in the marketing of grain in the northwestern part of the state. It is reported that before co-operative elevators were established there the local price of barley was from 15 to 20 cents a bushel less in some places than quotations for corresponding grades on the Minneapolis Board of Trade. Now after the lapse of three or four years the price of barley has advanced in these same towns as high in some cases as four cents a bushel above the Minneapolis price, and for the purpose apparently of driving these co-operative societies out of existence it is being forced still higher by those who formerly controlled the market; although in neighboring towns where no co-operative elevators exist the level of the Minneapolis figures. Is it right to permit industrial warfare of this sort to go unchecked?

The marketing of tobacco I am told illustrates the same thing in a slightly different way.

In Denmark and generally throughout European countries co-operative enterprises are kept together on the principle of cohesion. Members are required upon entering the society to contract for the delivery of all their product for periods ranging from five to fifteen years; and severe penalties are provided for violation of this agreement. Undoubtedly this principle may be advantageously applied here. But more by peaceful citizens can be induced to band themselves together for self-protection, why should commercial brigandage employed to defeat their efforts go unchecked? Beneficial trade associations will be all the easier to establish and maintain when these destructive practices have been effectively outlawed.

Here again the consideration of co-operation brings us face to face with the question of monopolies and trusts. Quite manifestly legislation upon either one of these subjects that ignores the other will be short-lived and of little value; for they are but different sides of the same shield. Co-operation is only another name for combination; and in recent years industrial trusts have deservedly come under public condemnation, largely because of abuses incident to combination. No treatment of the subject of co-operation in Wisconsin can be satisfactory therefore that does not take into account our present statutes relative to trusts, monopolies and contracts in restraint of trade. Our laws upon these subjects were enacted at different times and apparently under the spur of varying conditions of the public mind. Some of these laws are special while others are general in scope. Some denounce trusts and contracts in restraint of trade, while others encourage co-operation. No very clear purpose runs through them and it is not easy to reconcile them all upon the basis of any consistent economic principle.

Sections 1747e to 1747h denounce trusts and monopolies in broad and unqualified terms but except from their operation labor unions and "associations or organizations intended to legitimately promote the interests of trade, commerce or manufacturing." What inference are we to draw from these exemptions? Where do these statutes leave agricultural co-operative societies? Do these laws establish one rule for urban associations and another for those former to improve country life? Farmers are not mentioned and it is quite apparent that the organization of farmers for the betterment of rural conditions was not thought of when these laws were made.

Section 177g applies only to foreign co-operations doing business in Wisconsin. It forbids them from entering into "any combination, conspiracy, trust, pool, agreement or contract intended to restrain or prevent competition in the supply or price of any article or commodity in general use in this state."

Sections 1791j to 1791n apply to corporations organized under the laws of Wisconsin and certain prohibitions against "combinations, conspiracies, trusts and agreements in restraint of trade" similar to those enumerated in the statute application to foreign corporations already mentioned.

Sections 1791m-1 to 1791n-8 define and prohibit unfair discrimination in the sale of dairy products. A bill is now pending in this legislature to extend the operation of this equitable principle so as to make it general.

Section 447a forbids combinations, conspiracies and agreements for the purpose of maliciously injuring another in his reputation, trade, business or profession. This appears to be the only one of these laws that has been challenged in the court. It has been held valid and been given a broad and beneficial interpretation.

Finally, sections 1786e-1 to 1786e-17 authorize the creation of co-operative associations chiefly as outlined in chapters 268 and 664 of the Laws of 1911. This was the first step in the right direction; but it does not appear that in drafting these statutes account was taken of any existing prohibition against trusts and contracts in restraint of trade.

So far as these laws are intended to destroy monopoly and to prevent the making of contracts in unreasonable restraint of trade they should be strengthened and improved. But they are merely prohibitory and therefore negative in effect. Something more is needed. The people of Wisconsin are entitled to know not only what industrial arrangements are forbidden by law but also what contracts and associations are legally permissible or commendable; and they should be assisted in every way possible to avoid the one and to promote the other. The law moreover must be general. No other rule would be either valid or defensible. Nor should we be satisfied to leave the enforcement of such a statute wholly to individual initiative. Abundant experience teaches us that the average individual when confronted by a problem of this sort is quite helpless. For a single-handed contest against powerful corporate interests he has neither time, money, nor the necessary information; and as a rule he can see no reason why he should battle alone for the establishment of rights in which every other member of the community is equally interested. So it will not do merely to pass a statute defining the substantive law applicable to this important subject and trust to private individuals when injured by its infractions to enforce its penalties. A suitable administrative board should be created—an economic betterment or market commission, if you please—to have jurisdiction of all matters pertaining to the relation of producer and consumer in somewhat the same way the Industrial Commission deals with everything affecting the relation of employer and workman and the Railroad Commission everything involving the relation of shipper and common carrier. Should a board of this sort be established a number of existing commissions, offices and bureaus might be abolished by merging them into it, such as the Dairy and Food Commission, the Commissioner of Immigration, and the Board of Agriculture.

The time has come in Wisconsin to give practical effect to the co-operative idea. But we must act with our eyes wide open to the obstacles to be encountered and the difficulties to be overcome. What is needed is the establishment of a broad, consistent public policy in harmony with economic conditions as they now exist in all occupations. The line must be plainly drawn that separates monopoly from legitimate co-operation; that distinguishes unreasonable restraint of trade from mutual helpfulness; that will secure the advantages of free competition without exposing industry to unregulated industrial warfare.

I have had a bill of this kind prepared and I mean to submit it to you. Though saying no claim to perfection either in form or in substance it has been drafted with very great care. It deals with the subject to which it relates in a broad and inclusive way, covering the whole field of economic betterment within the state. As it is attached hereto detailed discussion of its provisions is unnecessary.

I am of course aware that there are many good bills now pending in the legislature pertaining to some phases of the problem dealt with comprehensively by this measure. Many of these proposals are excellent and should be enacted into law. The only regret is that they do not go far enough; or in cases where they cover the subject matter completely that they do not provide adequate administrative machinery for giving practical effect to their provisions.

Those who occupy official station in Wisconsin cannot too often be reminded that their state occupies an enviable position among the commonwealths of the country. Her leadership is widely recognized. To live up to what is expected of us will require all the intelligence, disinterested patriotism and unselfish devotion to the public welfare we can command. In dealing with the important problem here presented therefore commendable state pride as well as our own sense of obligation to the people we serve should prompt us to avoid legislation that will merely temporize with existing conditions or afford only partial relief. During the dozen eventful years just past, we have reformed our election machinery; we have devised an effective system for the regulation of public service corporations; we have done much to solve the labor problem; but we have accomplished little directly to improve agriculture or to relieve the great body of consumers. This is the task now before us.

Our Railroad Commission law was a pioneer measure of very great significance and value. But is confined to the comparatively narrow relation of shipper and common carrier. The Industrial Commission, act of the last legislature, the most important bill perhaps of the session, covers the wider interests of employers and workmen. The bill herewith submitted deals with the still more intimate and comprehensive relation of producer and consumer. But though of broader importance and significance than either of the others this bill is in perfect harmony with the political philosophy that underlines it. It is in accord therefore with the best models of recent legislation in Wisconsin. As such I commend it to your careful consideration.

Synopsis of the Bill.

The measure is entitled "A Bill to create sections 1747i-1 to 1747h-17 inclusive, and to amend Section 1747h of the statutes, creating a market commission, prohibiting monopoly and unfair trade, promoting co-operative enterprises and making an appropriation therefor."

To Improve Country Life.

The measure is offered because of a demand from the rural communities for and establishing co-operative enterprises and for protection against the results of unfair business practices and methods of competition. Its provisions also take note of the definite desire on the part of the legislature and of the people of the state to improve, not only educational and industrial conditions, but also to improve the conditions surrounding home life in the country.

A Market Commission and Its Purposes.

The proposed law creates a state commission to be known as "The State Market Commission," composed of the dairy and food commissioner ex officio and two other members, appointed by the governor, by and with the consent of the senate. As stated in the language of the bill itself the purposes of the commission are (1) to prevent monopoly, contracts and combinations in every form detrimental to the people of the state; (2) to promote in the interests of the public, including consumer and producer alike, economical and efficient production and distribution of all commodities;

(3) to promote development of the natural resources of the state and of its proper agricultural, industrial and commercial interests, so far as such development is consistent with public welfare; (4) to improve country life and to provide equality of opportunity for the people of the state; (5) to perform the duties and functions heretofore performed by the dairy and food commissioner, the state board of immigration, and the state board of agriculture.

The Recall by the Legislature.

That the commission may continue to be responsive to the wishes of the legislature and the people is assured by a rather novel device heretofore unknown in American law. Any member of the commission shall, upon request of three senators or ten members of the assembly, appear before the senate or assembly, as the case may be, to answer written interrogatories, and to be examined with respect to any official act. The questions and answers and all proceedings are fully recorded and a copy thereof, with recommendations, are then transmitted to the governor. The governor may under his general power of removal then proceed to act upon the evidence produced and the recommendations made. The legislature is not itself helpless however for the next section provides that any member of the commission may be removed from his office by a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to each house, without any action on the part of the governor. The commissioner complained of having been first served with a copy of the charges and having had opportunity to be heard in his own defense.

Aid to Co-operative Associations.

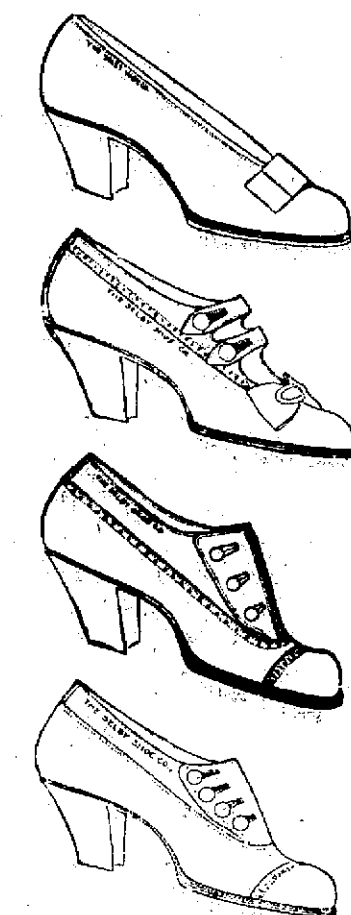

The commission is directed to investigate and inform itself upon all matters relating to the organization of co-operative enterprises, and to give instruction by correspondence and bulletins as to co-operative production and distribution. Efficient business methods, proper forms of procedure for organizations and as to all other matters reasonably necessary and promoting such institutions. It is to furnish a market news service including information regarding crops, freight rates, commissions and such other matters as may be of service to producers and consumers and is directed to cooperate and aid producers and consumers in devising economical systems of marketing and the opening of markets.

The bill proceeds in some detail to enjoin upon the commission the duty of assisting co-operative enterprise not only by education and suggestion, but by furnishing organizers of co-

Leadership in Ladies Shoes

This year it would seem as though the seasons themselves favored footwear fashions for Easter. Ordinarily the silks, velvets and delicate suede leathers which go to make up a goodly portion of this season's styles would be inappropriate for wear during weather which usually comes at this time of the year, but are just right for such balmy, sunshiny days as we are having—just the weather to most effectively display the beautiful new creations in Ladies' shoes to be found only at this store.

Our assortment of Ladies' Shoes affords an opportunity for selection in smart, exclusive shoes that other shops cannot outdo in fit, form and variety of styles.

WHEN A LAXATIVE IS NEEDED—"CASCARETS"

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills Are Violent—They Act on Bowels As Pepper Acts in Nostrils.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your liver, stomach and bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, indigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Receipt

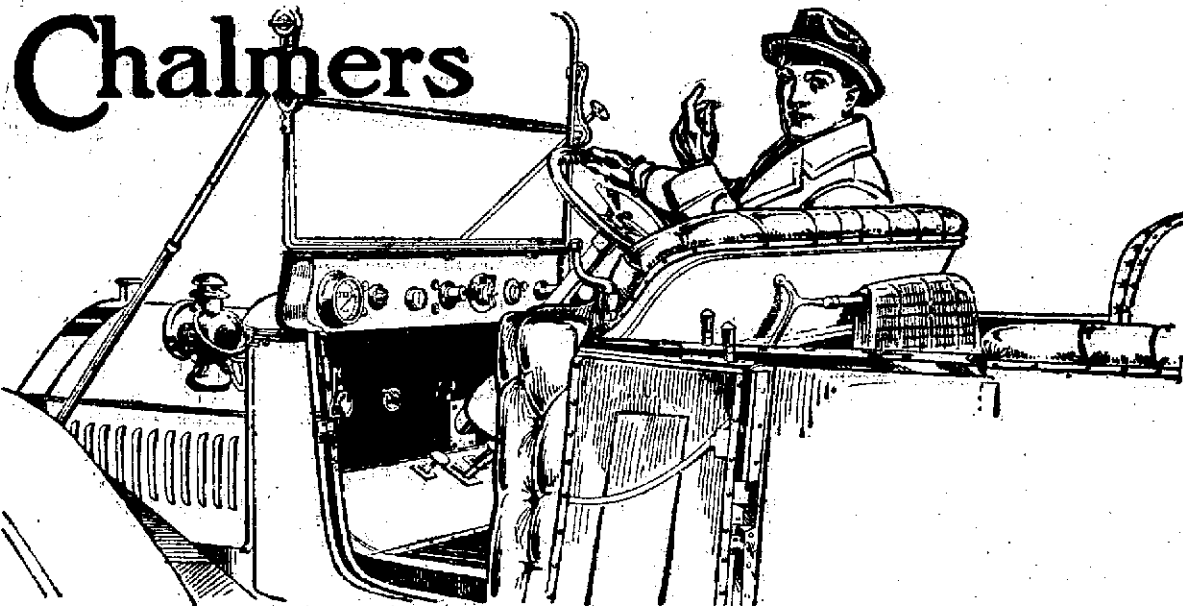

No Better Remedy at Any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing one pint of granulated sugar and ½ pint of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (100 cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Make a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It opens up the faded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequalled remedy for whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been initiated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in quaiacal and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Chalmers

The Inviting Chalmers "Thirty-Six"

Inviting because it simply appears good and right. Some houses are that way—the ones you know are right, without knowing just why.

The wide door invites you to step in, the deep cushions to sit down, the big steering wheel to drive.

Just keep your seat—don't get out in the street again. The control of this car is centered on the cowed dash.

Push a button and the Chalmers cranks itself. Chalmers air pressure starter does it—best starter made because simplest, most economical, quickest acting, most reliable under all conditions.

Chalmers was the first car to have a dependable starter. Chalmers "Thirty-Six" gave a trade name to the year 1912. That year goes down in automobile history as "Self-Starter year." Chalmers cars set fashions.

Just move a lever and the carburetor is adjusted.

Turn a switch and the electric lights are on.

The levers and pedals and wheel are just where you want them. In fact, all the "controls" of the Chalmers are right to your hand—most of them artistically grouped on the stylishly cowed dash.

And, by the way, that's another big automobile improvement the Chalmers had first—the cowed dash. Compare this one feature with the same on other cars—see if the Chalmers isn't better done.

Rims are demountable. Tires may be inflated from the compressed air tank—no pumping. Others ask you to pay extra for this feature.

In view of all these good points, a Chalmers "Thirty-Six" is particularly inviting because of its price—only $1950 (f. o. b. Detroit) for a fully equipped up-to-the-minute motor car of A-1 goodness. Always on view at our showrooms.

This monogram stands for all you can ask in a motor car

Today's Evansville News

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, March 18.—Mrs. Albert Enshall very pleasantly entertained yesterday the North Side Women's Club.

Miss Gladys Bowen was hostess at a party for the seminary freshman class last Saturday evening.

Mrs. George Lezow very pleasantly entertained a number of young lady friends at a St. Patrick's party last evening. The house was tastefully decorated in symbols of the day and the evening was spent in games, music, etc., a most delightful time resulting for those present.

Last Saturday evening was the drawing of the W. R. C. rags, and those holding the lucky numbers were: Miss Nora Lamb and Mrs. Mayne Rogers. Nearly two hundred were present at the drawing and supper. The W. R. C. are very grateful indeed to those buying numbers and also those taking supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hansen and four children of Madison were the over Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Burr Tolles have moved into the house on Liberty street recently purchased by them.

Mrs. G. C. Seales is very ill.

Miss Isabelle Lewis spent the week-end with her parents in Whitewater.

Ellsworth Mueller left the employ of the Economy grocery last Saturday night, leaving Sunday for Madison, where he has a position in an electrical shop.

Dr. George Spencer spent Sunday with friends in Whitewater.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Richardson spent today in Madison attending the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. B. Butts.

Antone Cole and family of Magnolia are moving here in a portion of the Gill Seales house. Mr. Cole has accepted a position in the Grange grocery.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hyno are moving into a part of the Potter building on Main street, recently purchased by them, and remodeled into an up-to-date flat.

Miss Bessie Spencer returned yesterday from an extended visit with her sister and other relatives in Milwaukee.

Miss Anna Johnson of Jonesville is with Mrs. R. M. Antes sewing this week.

Miss Ruth Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Robinson is ill.

Mrs. Gertrude Gunnis of Jonesville is here caring for her sister, Mrs. John Ruse who is worse.

Dr. C. M. Smith was an Attica visitor Sunday.

John Troon of Magnolia was a local caller Monday.

Mrs. Fred H. Winston spent Monday with friends in Janesville.

operative enterprises who, by training and experience, shall be competent to render efficient service.

Consumer to Be Protected.

It is noticeable that it is not the producer alone who is to reap the benefit and consumers in devising economical fits of the efforts of the commission.

Evidence is everywhere found that a carefully thought out plan is being inaugurated to lower the cost of living.

Every effort is to be made to reduce the waste of marketing and distribution; city markets are to be established, organized, inspected and rendered efficient and the city consumer is to be put in close touch with the rural producer.

Competition Encouraged but No Prices Fixed.

The commission is organized somewhat as is the industrial commission and the railroad commission. The complaint, however, has a grievance, not because of an excessive freight rate or an unreasonably high electric light bill, but because he has paid a monopolistic price for some commodity, or has been injured in his business by some unfair trick or method of competition.

After investigation the commission finds that a monopoly detrimental to the public interests exists, or that a monopolistic competitor is using unfair methods of competition, the existing statutes of the state are invoked and the monopoly either punished or enjoined from further activity. The commission is given absolutely no power to fix prices, but it becomes its duty to see to it that full, free and fair competition everywhere exists. In accomplishing this end broad general powers of investigation and examination are given.

Unfair Practices Forbidden.

Unfair practices forbidden. Great emphasis is placed on an effort to prohibit and prevent all unfair trade practices and unfair methods of competition. The bill provides, that if the commission finds that any person is attempting unreasonably to limit competition by such practices as discriminating between communities where competition is present and where it is not, by refusing to deal with more than one person in a community, by making any false representations as to the product or character of a competitor, or by other devices or a similar nature these practices shall be deemed unfair and illegal.

An Economical Merger.

No insignificant portion of the duty of the new commission will be to carry on the work heretofore performed under Mr. J. Q. Emery as dairy and food commissioner. As he becomes a member of the new commission he will doubtless continue to supervise all matters which have previously been under his jurisdiction. The state board of immigration is absorbed in the new commission, but as its secretary and other employees become the employees of the new market commission, the activities of the immigration board will be continued. The state board of agriculture is merged in the market commission. Its secretary and employees, however, become the employees of the new commission. It is also contemplated in the law that the old board of agriculture, acting as an advisory committee, shall continue to have charge of the state fair, subject however to the direction of the market commission. It is evident that the merger of these somewhat related departments into a single well-organized commission will make for efficiency and economy. It is estimated that with the funds heretofore devoted to the separate departments at its disposal the market commission will be able to enter its new field of work at comparatively little expense to the state.

Some of the piles in use in Amsterdam are 300 to 400 years old. That part which is not in the ground is often bored by a pile worm near the surface, but is preserved by driving in nails with very large heads, so as to give the pile an iron coating. This coating is then transformed by the water into a layer of rust, which protects the wood from the pile worm. This process must be repeated every fifteen years.

Saw Humor in Situation.

Joseph Jefferson, wrote Mary Shaw in the Century, was once introduced at a club by a blundering chairman as "Mr. Washington Irving—I—I—mean—Mr. Rip Van Winkle—I—I—mean—Mr. Joseph Jefferson." Mr. Jefferson, being somewhat deaf, did not hear this, and misunderstood the prolonged laughter that greeted him as he rose. On its real cause being later explained to him, he was relieved, and exclaimed, "Good heavens! I don't wonder they roared at that tripping down the scale."

TO FOLLOW HER BON MOT AROUND WORLD

Mrs. George W. Wickersham.

Washington society is downcast because Mrs. George W. Wickersham, wife of the present attorney-general, is packing her trunk in preparation for leaving for San Francisco March 18, on a trip around the world. She has been known, as the wit of the administration circle. She originated the famous formula for the avoidance of being a "lonely" denunciations, or dress. She will take with her the "Attorney-General Book," half diary and half scrap-book, full of comment on the events of her four years in Washington.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please send me a formula that will remove superfluous hair. I have used various kinds but have not had any results. Have used peroxide and ammonia. I do not want to use anything that would damage my face or ruin my health. I have been pulling the hairs out with tweezers and they come back. P. M.

Nothing will permanently remove hairs except the electric treatment. Some of the methods recommended are positively dangerous. Peroxide, if persistently used, will whiten the hairs so they will not show so plainly but even peroxide is harmful for it hardens the skin and gives it a dead look.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I just read a letter in which a girl said she loved a man who had insulted her twice and she wanted to know if she would forgive him. You answered that if she did she must be pretty far gone.

(1)—Now, dear Mrs. Thompson, I am a good girl. The man I love insulted me and after he had done so he begged my forgiveness. I partly forgave him but in my heart I can never forget it. Please tell me what you think about it. (2)—Do you think there is any harm in a rich fellow going to see a poor girl? (3)—If a girl turns a fellow down should she give back his presents? (4)—Should a girl go with a fellow she does not love? L. M.

(1)—A man may be forgiven for the first time he fails to be a gentleman, if he is sincerely sorry and, if his after conduct shows that he is sorry and will never do such a thing again. I really do not think that a good girl ever forgives a serious insult, in her heart. If she loves the man and sees that he is trying to be good, she will do the next best thing and forget all about the wrong he did. But if she forgives the second time, she has lost some of her goodness and the man who errs a second time does an unpardonable thing.

(2)—If she keeps her dignity and he respects her, I can see no harm in it. (3)—Certainly. (4)—A girl may be friendly with a man she does not love and occasionally go out with him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—Will you kindly give me a good hair shampoo? (2)—A few days after shampooing my hair it is so oily I can't put it up nicely. What can I do? (3)—What is good for dandruff? MISS T. T.

(1)—Use the egg shampoo. Beat a couple of eggs, rub well into the hair, let dry, then rinse hair well, several times, with warm (not hot) water. A little powdered borax in the first rinse water will be good if the hair is very oily. (2)—For oily hair rub the following mixture well into the scalp every day: 2 oz. alcohol, 2 oz. with them and I quit speaking or Kerosene rubbed into the scalp two or three times a week. Is one of the best dandruff remedies.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please send me a formula that will remove superfluous hair. I have used various kinds but have not had any results. Have used peroxide and ammonia. I do not want to use anything that would damage my face or ruin my health. I have been pulling the hairs out with tweezers and they come back. P. M.

Nothing will permanently remove hairs except the electric treatment. Some of the methods recommended are positively dangerous. Peroxide, if persistently used, will whiten the hairs so they will not show so plainly but even peroxide is harmful for it hardens the skin and gives it a dead look.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I just read a letter in which a girl said she loved a man who had insulted her twice and she wanted to know if she would forgive him. You answered that if she did she must be pretty far gone.

(1)—Now, dear Mrs. Thompson, I am a good girl. The man I love insulted me and after he had done so he begged my forgiveness. I partly forgave him but in my heart I can never forget it. Please tell me what you think about it. (2)—Do you think there is any harm in a rich fellow going to see a poor girl? (3)—If a girl turns a fellow down should she give back his presents? (4)—Should a girl go with a fellow she does not love? L. M.

(1)—A man may be forgiven for the first time he fails to be a gentleman, if he is sincerely sorry and, if his after conduct shows that he is sorry and will never do such a thing again. I really do not think that a good girl ever forgives a serious insult, in her heart. If she loves the man and sees that he is trying to be good, she will do the next best thing and forget all about the wrong he did. The Evening Chit-Chat

MEMORY CUPBOARDS.

DO YOU keep memory cupboards in your mind in which to put the things that will interest your various friends?

The other day I met a woman whom I usually see about half a dozen times a year. As soon as our greetings were over she said warmly, "I'm so glad to see you. I wanted to tell you about a letter I had from Miss L., you remember, the lady who visited us last summer. Well, she said—" and then she went on to tell me of some kind words Miss L. had been good enough to write about my little talks, and which, needless to say, made the rest of the day bright for me.

Now, she had received that letter some six weeks before, and she had been saving this up to tell me all that time.

That is what I mean by memory cupboards. I never see this woman but that she has something in her memory cupboard for me. Of course it isn't always a compliment. Sometimes it's a new nonsense rhyme, because she knows I enjoy these products of a peculiar genius. Sometimes it's a piece of news about some mutual friend. Sometimes a suggestion of a topic that I might enjoy using. But she always brings into our conversation some personal bit which she has been saving up especially for me. Nor am I the only one thus honored by any means. I happen to know that she does this for all her friends.

Do you wonder that she has just as many friends as she has room for—and then a lot more.

I think this woman acquired the habit of keeping memory cupboards for the sake of her mother who was a semi-invalid for years. She has told me that she used to be always on the alert to pick up any little incident or piece of news or information to take home to the shut-in. And I suppose that is how the gracious custom first became a habit with her.

Little things like the repeated compliment, the interesting bit of news, the carefully remembered nonsense rhyme, can give a great deal of pleasure. For in addition to their intrinsic value one is also pleased by the kindly spirit that stored them up.

There are some people who never have interesting things like this to tell; there are other people who occasionally give pleasure that way more by chance than intention; and there are a few who deliberately keep these memory cupboards.

To which class do you belong?

An Easter Dinner.

There seems to be always a question at this joyful season of the year whether food or flowers play the most important part at a dinner. Flowers have always held an important place on the Easter table and the spring blossoms, many of them forced for the occasion, make beautiful table decorations. One Fifth Avenue florist has had tulips, narcissus, hyacinths and daffodils blooming for weeks outside his shop with such a wealth of color. Have you wondered what he could possibly have new to offer us at the Easter table? The following menu could be carried out in red using tulips or keeping the entire scheme white or green. In fact, have the color scheme sunshine yellow, but do not feel that all the food must be colored up to meet the decorations. Simply keep the whole harmonious to the eye, bearing in mind that it is more important what goes into the stomach.

Use GOLD DUST instead of soap

You really don't need soap in the house, except for toilet and bath, and possibly a little for your fine laces and lingerie. With Gold Dust—the all round cleanser—you can do all your household cleaning more quickly—easily—economically than you can with soap or any other cleanser.

Gold Dust does the work better, too. Soap only cleans off the surface; Gold Dust goes into every corner cleaning and purifying,—driving out the germs as well as the dirt.

Best of all, you don't need any elbow grease with Gold Dust—it does the work itself.

Another Reform Movement

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work."

Courage in your own.

SOME DISHES WORTH TRYING.

When it is hard to think of anything new for dessert, try using the following: Open a can of pears, take out enough to serve for a meal, cover with a bit of the juice and season with mace. Cook until well seasoned, remove the mace and serve a pear or two with juice and a tablespoonful of whipped and sweetened cream.

Cottage Cheese Salad.—Mix two cups of cottage cheese with a half cup of English walnut meats, a teaspoonful of chopped chives or scraped onion, salt and paprika to taste; roll in egg shapes or shape in a tablespoon, and then place two or three in nests of lettuce. Serve with any desired salad dressing. A mayonnaise with a few chopped olives or capers will improve the salad.

Fruit Sponge Drops.—Bake small sponge cakes, baking them in gem tins. When cold, cut off the top, carefully remove the center, and fill with a teaspoonful of canned peaches or any desired fruit that you have at hand. Put a tablespoonful of whipped cream on top and serve. If one has a large amount of fruit juice left from a jar of fruit, the sponge cakes may be served unbroken, with the juice added to the whipped cream for a flavor. If cherry juice is added, a few drops of almond will be good for flavor.

Uncooked Mince Meat.—Two cups of chopped cooked beef, five cups of apples, three cups of raisins, one cup of molasses, four cups of sugar, one cup each of vinegar and cider, one tablespoonful of cinnamon and a cup of suet. This makes one gallon, and will keep a long time in a cool place. It may be cooked and canned.

The Fever to Make Money

HE was at a well-known resort for his health.

He was thin and scrawny and dyspeptic. He talked learnedly about protein and carbohydrates, and what was good for him and what wasn't. And he picked delicately at his food, and refused this dish because it was too rich in some element, and wouldn't partake of that correction because it was lacking in some necessary nourishment.

And when he wasn't talking about food, or refusing it, he was discussing his business, and telling everybody who would listen what "jobs" he had put through, and what "jobs" he had underway, and what "jobs" he hoped to get.

"I had a break down before this," he exclaimed to a little group one day. "And when I was still so weak, I could hardly stand, I crawled out and sat on the foundations of a building we were putting up and told the men what to do."

"Yes, and if you hadn't done that," said his father who had him in charge, "you wouldn't be broken down again."

"I just had to," replied the son. "That job had to be put through."

And then he fell to worrying about the "jobs" underway, and to wondering how they were getting on.

Yet he wasn't poor. He didn't need to work in this fashion. If he had never put another "job" through, he and his family could have lived in comfort the rest of their days.

But he was obsessed with the craze to make money. He knew nothing but money making. He never stopped to reason what he wanted the money for, whether he needed it, or what he would do with it. He simply was consumed with the feverish desire to make it.

And so he wrecked his health to make it. He spent all his time in working for it. He never took a minute to enjoy the results of it. He knew nothing of the pleasure money could bring him—travel, the enjoyment of books, music, literature, nature. He worked early and late. When he could not be actually at work on a "job," he was thinking about it, planning for it, and how to get more. He had little real intimacy with his family. His whole life was a mad passion of money-making.

And all what for? To become a dyspeptic, and sit about wondering what he could eat, or gloomily regretting he wasn't back at work.

And he is not alone in his outlook on life. All over these United States of ours, are plenty like him, frenziedly laboring to amass money—simply to amass money, nothing else. They never look beyond. They never question, "What for?" They simply are chasing madly the almighty dollar, and their only happiness comes when they grab it.

TALKS WITH MOTHERS

(By Gertrude Stevens Ayres.)

Emergencies.

There are a few very important things every mother should know about emergencies. It takes time, sometimes minutes and sometimes hours, before the services of a doctor can be secured; and meantime the life of the little one is at stake. The cool head and steady nerves of the mother or nurse are of inestimable value at such a time.

Convulsions.

Summon a doctor at once. Keep the child perfectly quiet with ice at the head, but the feet in a mustard bath, and roll the entire body in large towels which have been dipped in mustard water, two heaping tablespoonfuls of mustard to one quart of tepid water, and have plenty of hot water and a bath tub at hand, so that the doctor can give a hot bath if he thinks it advisable.

If the convulsions have continued until the pulse is weak, the face very pale, the lips and the nails blue, and the feet and the hands cold, the hot bath will be useful in bringing blood to the surface and relieving the heart, lungs, and brain.

The temperature should not be over 100 degrees F. should always be tested by a thermometer if one can be obtained. Without this precaution, in the excitement of the moment, infants have frequently been put into baths so hot that serious and even fatal burns have been produced. If no thermometer is available the nurse may plunge her arm to the elbow into the water. It should feel warm, but not so hot as to be uncomfortable. One half a teaspoonful of powdered mustard added to the bath often adds to its efficiency.

Foreign Bodies.

If a foreign body has been swallowed, first examine the throat with the finger to see if it has lodged there, and if so remove it. If it passed from the throat it has usually gone into the stomach.

In this case give the child plenty of dry food, like bread, potato, etc., but under no circumstances either an emetic or cathartic. An infant may have its usual food. A cathartic is likely to hurry the foreign body too rapidly through the intestine and in this way do harm; otherwise it becomes coated with local matter and passes the intestine usually without doing injury.

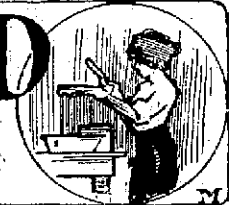

If a foreign body has been introduced into the child's ear, it should not be meddled with, unless it can be easily removed with the fingers, for it is likely to be pushed farther into the ear. The child should be taken to a physician.

If there is a foreign body in the nose, the child should blow his nose strongly while the empty nostril is compressed. Unless this removes it the services of a physician should be sought. Middlesome interference is often harmful.

Ears.

The ear of a child afflicted with the earache should be irrigated with a solution of boric acid as warm as can be borne. Dry heat may then be applied in several ways. The ear having first been covered with cotton, a small hot-water bag or one filled with hot salt or bran, may be bound over it with a bandage; or a small butter plate heated in hot water may be used in the same way. The hot-water bag may be held against the ear or the child may lie with his head upon it. The use of oil and laudanum in the ear is not recommended.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Gelatin Easter Eggs.

When using eggs for cakes, custards, etc., just make small opening in small end of egg, emptying contents very carefully, saving the shells to use later. Get a package of gelatin and prepare according to directions. Wash out the egg shells with cold water and fill with the gelatin through a small funnel. Set on end in a pan of broken ice, to harden. When ready to serve take off shell and serve in a nest of lettuce cut in ribbons to represent grass. A bit of whipped cream may be put on top.

These are very pretty if the different flavoring and colors are used.

The Table.

SOUP—Try this for a change (as it is quickly made): One small cup rice, cook for a while, then add one or two onions and salt and pepper to suit taste, eight to ten tomatoes and a chunk of butter. In winter you may use canned tomatoes.

MINCED HAMBURG ON TOAST.—Four slices bread toasted, three large onions, one pound hamburger steak, two tablespoons tomato juice, one tablespoon flour, one cup water, salt, and pepper to taste.

Slice onions and brown in fryings. Fry hamburger separately in fryings. When onions are brown, add to hamburger steak, season, sprinkle flour over both and let brown. Add water to make gravy, adding tomatoes last. Makes a very nice breakfast dish. Dish up just enough to cover slices of toast.

HOLLAND SAUERKRAUT.—Put sauerkraut into colander, rinse with cold water, then put into stew pan with a little cold water, sprinkle with caraway seeds and cook slowly until soft. Grace one medium-sized raw potato and blend with a little flour, then beat quickly into the sauerkraut. Cook until flour is done. Sprinkle two tablespoons of fat from pork roast over the kraut and serve hot with roast pork.

INDIVIDUAL PEACH DESSERT. (Just fine)—Take two good sized canned peaches, remove stones, and from the top cut the peach through half its length in cross-cuts, dividing it into four points. Syrean apart and fill the inside with vanilla ice cream. On either side of peach lay shredded pineapple.

SILVER OR DELICATE CAKE.—Whites of three eggs, one cup sweet milk, two cups sugar (or one cup, according to taste), four cups sifted flour two tablespoons butter, flavoring, two teaspoons baking powder.

Stir sugar and butter to a cream, then add milk, flavoring, part of the flour, the beaten whites of eggs, then the rest of the flour. Bake carefully in tins lined with buttered white paper. (Yolks of eggs may be used for cream filling.)

A QUICK PUDDING.—Peel and slice four apples into a pudding pan, sprinkle a little sugar over them, add what water you think will cook the apples. Make a batter of one pint flour two teaspoons baking powder, a pinch of salt, stir in milk enough to make a rather stiff batter; drop this, like dumplings, on top of the apples, cover close with a lid, set on top of stove, cook without lifting lid until apples are done. Serve with sauce made of one cup brown sugar, two cups water, small piece of butter; thicken with cornstarch; or the pudding can be served with milk.

RICE TOAST TO GRAVY.—Take tablespoon lard and tablespoon butter, then cut up good-sized onion very fine and brown in same. Add small bottle catsup and about a cup of water, pepper and salt to taste. Add meat cut up in two-inch squares and let cook with a slow fire until done. This is very good with beef, veal or lamb.

FRIED CAKES.—One quart flour, half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder, half cup sugar, sift all together, then add half pint sour cream; stir in one even teaspoon soda, add three eggs well beaten, mix all together and cut with fried cake cutter. Cook in hot lard. Use knitting needle to lift fried cakes from hot lard; it will not perforate them like a fork and allow the lard to soak in. Three or four may be taken up at once.

LEMON RICE PUDDING.—One and one-half cups rice boiled soft in water drain and add one-half pint cold milk, little butter, yolks of two eggs and grated rind of lemon. Mix and bake one-half hour. When cold beat whites of two eggs, stir in one cup sugar and juice one lemon, beat good, pour over rice and brown in oven. Be sure rice is cold before you put on frosting.

WHITE CAKE (cheap and easy to make)—One cup sugar, one cup milk, one-third cup butter or lard, two teaspoons baking powder, flour to make stiff batter.

Filling: Two-thirds cup sugar, one half cup milk, one teaspoon butter. Boil till it becomes soft ball in water, then beat till creamy and spread between layers and on top.

formerly sold for $9.75 for only

$7.00

SIMPLE, PRACTICAL, EFFICIENT, ECONOMICAL

The E. Z. Vacuum Cleaner is strictly a one person machine, as easy to handle as an ordinary carpet sweeper, but vastly more modern and efficient. Brooms and Carpet Sweepers remove dirt only from the SURFACE and cannot be used without raising clouds of dust, but the E. Z. cleans by SUCTION, gets not only the surface dirt but also the dust imbedded in the fabric and collects this dust instead of scattering it.

Baking Powder Biscuits

Light as a Feather

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Baking Powder Biscuits made by this recipe are so far ahead of ordinary baking powder biscuits that, if once tried, you will never use any other recipe. Try it the next time you run short of bread. Save this recipe.

K.C. Baking Powder Biscuits

Three cups flour; 1/4 to 1/2 cup shortening; 1 level teaspoonful K.C. Baking Powder; about 1 cup milk or water; 1 teaspoonful salt.

Sift three times, the flour, salt and baking powder. Work into the flour the shortening, using lard or butter for shortening. Then mix to a very soft dough with the milk. The softer the biscuit enters the oven, the lighter it comes out. Never knead baking powder biscuits; press the dough into shape and roll lightly. Cut in small shapes and bake on a sheet or very shallow pan in a hot oven. In placing biscuits in the pans place well apart, not allowing edges to touch. Small biscuits are better than large ones. Large biscuits do not have the proper amount of time to raise and bake.

Have you seen the new K.C. Cook's Book? Brimful of appetizing recipes that simply must be successful every time if the few simple directions are carefully followed. You would gladly pay 50 cents for this valuable book; yet we send it absolutely free upon receipt of the colored certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K.C. Baking Powder. Jacobs Mfg. Co., Chicago. Small cans do not have Cook's Book certificate.

Preterita Raising Hops.

Experimental hops are now being grown at the government botanical station near Pretoria. Should success attend the attempts, a very remunerative side line will be within the reach of the South African farmer. There are ten breweries in the country using over half a million pounds, or more than 250 tons of hops per annum. This represents a cash value of $162,500.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Owes Life to This Consumption Remedy

It is beyond human power to perform miracles. The makers of Eckman's Alternative, a remedy for Consumption, do not claim that it will restore every one to perfect health, but so many have voluntarily testified that it saved their lives, that all who have this dread disease should investigate and try it. It should stop the night sweats, reduce fever, promote appetite and in very many cases, restore life. Read what it accomplished in this case:

Catherine Ave. and Ascel Place, Queen's Court, L. I.
"Gentlemen: In the year 1908 I was taken with a heavy cold and a nasty cough and went to several doctors, including a specialist. Their medicines failed, they went to the Cataplasms, but the cough kept up. I started there a year and then went on a farm near Jersey City, a very sick man.

My brother then recommended Eckman's Alternative to me very highly. At first I would not consent to use it, owing to the fact that I had taken so many medicines without being helped in any way, but finally I consented. It is now nearly two years since I first took it, and I am now cured and I dare say that I would have been buried long ago if it had not been for Eckman's Alternative. (Signed) ADRIAN J. J. TROSCHEK. Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in all kinds of the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of remedies and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.

A Stirring Story of Military Adventure and of a Strange Wartime Wooing, Founded on the Great Play of the Same Name

By BRONSON HOWARD AND HENRY TYRRELL

Illustrations From Actual Wartime Photographs by Brady.

COPYRIGHT, 1912, BY G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS

"I command me, Mrs. Haverill," answered Kerchival with his heart thumping in wild, wondering excitement. "He is beloved by every officer in the regiment."

"It is about the colonel's son, Frank. You know the trouble he has got into in New York. He has escaped arrest, and I have just received word that he is here in Charleston. I am the only one he can turn to. His father is stern and uncompromising in his humiliation. I want you to find Frank and arrange for me to meet him as soon as possible, if you can do it with safety. I shall give you a letter for him. I should like you to take it at daylight if possible. It is a sad errand, and I know of none but yourself whom I can trust with it."

Lieutenant Kerchival West bowed profoundly.

"I will get ready at once," he said. "I can change my clothes in five minutes."

How he welcomed this spur to action! The ball had ended for him at the last words of Gertrude.

He kept his word within the five minutes specified and came back booted and spurred to report to the colonel's wife. She was not where he had left her, but he heard her low, earnest voice at the other end of the shadowy veranda.

"If my husband knew," Mrs. Haverill's voice was saying, "he would kill you. Edward Thornton, unless you treacherously took advantage and shot him down without remorse. You know I am innocent. I never gave you any hint of encouragement, and the last I remember you were crouching before me like a whipped cur. But I have kept the secret, and you must. Avoid meeting Colonel Haverill before we leave Charleston."

"You have my apology," whispered Thornton.

"That is not what I have asked."

"Do you mean by that that you will not accept amends?"

"For my husband's sake," the woman pleaded.

"Ah, your anxiety on his account, madam, makes me feel that perhaps, after all, my offense is indeed unadmissible. What an absurd blunder for a gentleman to make. If I hadn't supposed it was Lieutenant Kerchival West who was my rival!"

"What do you mean, sir?"

"But instead it is your husband who stands between us."

"How dare you, sir!" cried the exasperated lady, now on the verge of hysterics. "Let me tell you that whatever I may wish to spare my husband he fears nothing for himself. But, no; I cannot of you do not let this horrible affair go any further."

Kerchival West, having no choice but to overbear, was of the same mind. He now stepped forward decisively, saying:

"Pardon me. I hope I am not interrupting. I believe, Mrs. Haverill, you have an errand for me?"

"Yes," she exclaimed eagerly. "Thank you so much. I will go and write the note immediately. Pray excuse me, Mr. Thornton."

Without another word she hastened away. The two men bowed and waited in silence until she was out of sight and hearing. Then Kerchival West drew himself up and said quietly:

"Thornton, you are a d—d scoundrel. Do I make myself plain?"

outer darkness. "Does any one know where Rob—I mean where Lieutenant Ellingham is?" He excused himself for a minute and he has been gone an hour and a half. He promised to be here before."

"So did Lieutenant West," Mrs. Haverill joined in with undisguised anxiety.

"Boom, came a loud, sullen, reverberating report from over the bay."

"Look!" screamed Gertrude Ellingham, jumping up in a frenzy of excitement. "Did you see that line of fire against the sky. That was no rocket—that was a shell. It has struck the fort!"

At the same instant there was a loud clatter of horses' hoofs outside and Bob Ellingham dashed up the front steps.

"Ruffin has fired the shot!" he cried, throwing his cap into the air. "Hark! there goes another one. They have opened fire on Sumter, sure enough!"

"Where is Mr. West?" Mr. Thornton? The doctor? demanded the three women, all in a breath.

"They are—Anderson doesn't reply—That's what I rode back ahead to tell you. It's all right. The second shot hit Thornton, and Kerchival hasn't a scratch. He'll be along with the doctor directly. Ruffin swore he would fire the first!"

"For heaven's sake, Robert, what are you talking about?" pleaded Gertrude, seizing him by the arm. "Do try and compose yourself and tell us what has happened. You say that—"

"Kerchival and Thornton have had it out, I tell you. Beauregard has 3,000 or 4,000 men under arms, and it's a chance if Anderson can muster a hundred. Well, as I was saying, they met in the gardens down at the bayon. Sam Pinckney and myself loaded the weapons, a pair of regulation navy sizes. Then we tossed up a silver dollar for choice of position at ten paces, and Thornton won. But that made no difference, for the sun wasn't up yet!"

"Merry! Was it a duel?" Mrs. Haverill interjected.

"It certainly was, madam. Kerchival scored at the second fire. His bullet plowed through Thornton's cheek, branding him, but nothing dangerous. The doctor is with him, and old Kerchival is all right and coming along after me any minute. Well, that trifling affair is over and well over. Something more important has started. I thought you'd all be anxious to know that!"

"Madam, I have to beg your pardon for my unexpectedly prolonged absence and to report for orders."

This last was the voice of Kerchival, looking uncommonly pale and animated, addressing himself to Mrs. Haverill.

"Nobility in Charleston slept that night of April 11-12. At the Ellingham house, as at Pinckney's, and at many another home of luxury and pride there were festive or other gatherings which kept people up and about until long past midnight."

Then in the early hours of that fatal Friday an exchange of rocket signals between Forts Johnson and Moultrie began. Every one knew what that meant. The view, some of them without stopping to change their evening clothes, disappeared with strange, silent, ominous alacrity. The women huddled in whispering groups or brought eyeglasses and from outdoor points of vantage watched intently across the dark waters to where the flagstaff of Sumter, like a warning finger, pointed solemnly to the stars in the balmy dusk of the southern spring-time sky.

The abrupt departure of Thornton and Lieutenants West and Ellingham, accompanied, as it appeared, by Dr. Ellingham and one or two of the young men in uniform, had not failed to attract attention and excite comment. Mrs. Haverill by discreet inquiry among the household servants, obtained a startling bit or two which she hastened to communicate in confidence to Gertrude—none else.

"There are tears in your eyes, Gertrude," said Mrs. Haverill sympathetically.

"They have no right there," returned the girl, with a pitiful flash of the old spirit that contrasted with the scared look on her unwontedly pale face.

"I am afraid I know—not what has happened to Lieutenant West in those last few minutes, but—forgive a woman who has had more experience than you have, dear, and who is fond of you—what happened between you and him when you were together for the last time, maybe, in—how knows how long? Let fate part you, if it must, but not a quarrel. What is pride or coquetry at such a moment?"

Colonel Anderson and Fort Sumter.

"She grasped his hand without speaking and drew him aside."

"I can only say God bless you, Lieutenant West," she said, with quivering lips. "Some happier day I hope to thank you adequately and so will the colonel. He knows even less than I do at the present moment. But he knows that Frank has taken refuge here, and he will not see him or allow me to do so. You will take these to the poor boy, won't you—this letter and this little packet? It is a sacred confidence, and I ask it, as I know you receive it, freely."

Kerchival bowed profoundly and was off in a second.

Mrs. Haverill's envoy to her stepson Frank had cost her another poignant scene with the colonel. Before the ball had ended and the excitement of Sumter fairly began, husband and wife had met in the seclusion of the lady's

"My Desdemona," he had said in more than half serious bantering. "I picked up Cassio's handkerchief here, and I have returned it to its owner. That is all very well, my girl, but what is this I hear about you having had a fainting spell or something earlier in the evening? You are trembling and excited even now."

"My husband, there is something I have to tell you—something very near to your heart. It is about your son!"

"About Frank? Again?"

"He is here in Charleston."

"He ought to be in prison, I suppose. But to me he is nowhere."

"I am sending word to him; I may see him later. Have you no word for him?"

"I have told you he and his unfortunate wife are provided for. Why should you see him? I shall not."

"At least I had thought to convey a warmer message than that from his father."
